

structured to include the most stakeholders and to be more participatory and open-ended. The process was structured to include the most stakeholders and to be more participatory and open-ended. The process was structured to include the most stakeholders and to be more participatory and open-ended. The process was structured to include the most stakeholders and to be more participatory and open-ended.

4. Public Awareness, Education, Consciousness and Belief - People just do not believe you when you try to raise these issues. "The tangible examples behind it. So we always link it to what is happening HERE, in the listener's community."

5. Over-riding interest of Indigenous People, Community Members, Stakeholders, and corporate interest - this prevalence over interests of the community, the citizens, or the workers in the industry.

6. Public Awareness, Education, Consciousness and Belief - People just do not believe you when you try to raise these issues. "The tangible examples behind it. So we always link it to what is happening HERE, in the listener's community."

Some Issues in Moving from a Single-Organization Orientation to a Network

- ➔ "How do we incorporate working on our own groups, and be part of networking - agreeing to support each other?"
- ➔ "How can we work on multilateral agreements, AT THE SAME TIME, allowing the strength of local organizations, continue to work in our own ways to support that local level of activity?"

Strategies to Include Looking and Working Forward to Malaysia APEC Meetings

- ➔ "How do we develop SOCIAL MUSCLE, as a group, working to something concrete in April (and the Malaysia APEC meetings, next round of these international task meetings)?"
- ➔ Those who could meet the following day to continue discussions of core messages and strategies for ongoing networking made plans to do so by the end of the week, anticipating a lead-up to prepared engagement at the next round of meetings.
- ➔ How can those who sponsor, organize and pay for participation in such networking events for activists be convinced that several more days time spent organizing, plus an equivalent amount of time updating and briefing each other as occurred in the November 1997 meeting will yield substantial, and sustained, efforts? Lessons learned from this working meeting as well as other "sustainability issues forums" concerning the development of such issues need to be applied and carried forward to increase the effectiveness of the next working meeting. This is part of strengthening capacity of the network which is a major