Y. M. H. A. PLANNING CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS

A Young Men's Hebrew Association, to be conducted along similar lines to the Y. M. C. A., is to be organized in Toronto. Plans to bring such into being were formulated at a meeting held in University Synagogue on Sunday afternoon, at which Rabbi Price presided.

As soon as the necessary arrangements can be made a mass meeting is to be held as the inaugural of a campaign to raise funds for the undertaking. In this connection Christians as well as Jews will be asked to subscribe. It was pointed out that when the Y. M. C. A. had its Toronto campaign, to raise funds a number of Jews contributed liberally towards it and that the same was the case when a similar campaign was conducted for the New York City Y. M. C. A., to which Harry Rosenwald, a wealthy Jew, contributed the sum of $50,000.

A building is to be erected and laid out with gymnasium, etc., along similar lines to the Central Y. M. C. A. building. The Y. M. H. A. is to be an organization for athletic, social, literary, educational and spiritual uplift and will be open to all Jewish young men of Toronto.

Yes and No

It is no wonder that intelligent parents lay great stress on the way they talk to their children, on the way they answer their questions, on the way the little ones receive knowledge of the world they are to live in. On Friday of last week we spoke strongly of the necessity of answering children honestly and simply; and of avoiding untruthful or evasive answers as unfair to the baby mind.

It is for the mothers and fathers to determine what kind of impressions the active little brain shall receive, and upon their decision will rest very largely the healthy or unhealthy mentality of the boy or girl who will be the man or woman.

Wholesome and healthful character growth has even more wonderful possibilities, for the response to right and wrong comes long before the average mother realizes. The useless and unmeaning "yes" or "no" are an abomination. How many of us, when busy at some task that requires all our hands and eyes, will say "Yes, dear," to some remark of the little one, or, when asked an opinion, will exclaim enthusiastically "Yes, it's pretty!" without having looked at the admired object.

I know a mother who admired something that way one morning, and received a big jolt of awakening when the small son said: "But, mother, look with your face!"

The Evening Primrose.

One of the easiest perennials to cultivate is the evening primrose. And called the evening primrose because the great yellow blossoms prefer to open their golden cups as the afternoon draws towards the dusk.

The blossom? Just try to imagine a curving, four-petaled wild-rose-like flower, three inches across, the gleaming gold of which has the texture of the finest French chiffon, velvety, many stamens, thickly pollen laden, are faintly touched with a vanishing shade of crimson. Each laughing blossom, borne proudly erect upon sturdy, thick gray-green stems (these stems also touched with shades of red) is in company with a host of fast-opening buds, red-tipped and golden-hearted.

The blossoms are faintly fragrant, with a fragrance reminiscent of the woods, where once evening primrose was wont to revel thru all the night.

One of the oldest sights of the spring gardening is the young, growing plants, just above ground. Like great roses they cling close to the fresh earth, the thick gathered leaves of them, row on row, ranging from blood red in the centre to bronze green on the outermost reaches of the roset. As the plant grows, the lower stem shoots up from this roset, the red leaves changing in color to gray-green, and, as growth progresses, a fine downiness spreads over the coarse textured leaves.

From the middle of June until late in August, the evening primrose blooms, the blossoms lasting but an evening and a night each. But the host of buds, ever forming, provides a constant supply of succurs for the beautification of the garden.

Your stock may be best obtained from the sowing of seed in early spring. The second year, and forever after, care being taken, your primroses are sure to bloom.

The stock may be easily increased by root division, after the first year, each of the roots, spoken of above being a separate plant and requiring to be separated from the old plant of last year.

Some gardeners allow the rosetts to grow up untouched; but such a plan tends towards the deterioration of the yellow blossoms. Larger and more profuse bloom is assured if these rosetts are planted singly.

Evening primrose requires a certain amount of attention, cultivation frequently, and plenty of moisture to ensure perfect bloom. The nature of the plant, almost a surface rooter, will show our gardeners the necessity for plant food.

Protect the plant roots by a thick mulching during the winter.

Home Treatment for Sallow, Wrinkled Skin

(Advertisement.)
A. C. F. asks: "What should I do for my sallow complexion, and how can I get rid of my wrinkles?"
Sallowness is best removed by removing the skin itself. This is effectually accomplished by the use of ordinary soap-water, which causes the offensive outer skin gradually to peel off, in fine particles, scarcely noticeable to the naked eye. Visible complexion, the new skin exhibiting a healthy, youthful tint incomparable with artificial coloring. Get an ounce of this wax at your drugstore, apply at night with your fingers, only don't rub it in. Wash it off in the morning with warm water. For your wrinkles try a solution of powdered salicylic acid, dissolved in 1/2 pint witch hazel. Bathe your face in this morning for a while. The result will surprise you.—Beauty's Mirror.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT GARDEN PARTY

N. W. Rowell Addresses Guests of Women's Liberal Club on Saturday.

In point of numbers as well as in the picturesque of its place of meeting, the garden party of the Toronto Women's Liberal Club of Saturday afternoon was an undoubted success.

Woodford, the beautiful house and grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Rutter, on the Kingston road, was the rendezvous of the many invited, and whatever delay was experienced owing to lack of sufficient accommodation on the Suburban line, was amply repaid by the hospitality of the host and hostesses when the Mosca was reached.

The keynote of the sentiment of the gathering was voiced in the motions that hung high on the various points of vantage, "Wake Up, Ontario," and "Give Labor a Chance," being among the most conspicuous. Tea was served in a large mesquite erected in the spinney and the lawn was bright with the varied colors of the ladies' attire.

Mrs. Lindsey, president of the Liberal Women's Club, was assisted by Mrs. Rutter in receiving. The principal speaker was Mr. Rowell, who had to leave early for Woodstock. The gist of the Liberal leader's speech was an appeal for the men of Ontario to come out plainly on the "abolish the bar" question.

Three times have the people of Ontario spoken in favor of temperance, was the statement of Dr. Mackenzie, yet no notice had been taken. The speaker thought that the mature will of the people should be crystallized by the government. Arthur Kirkpatrick gave a telling address on tax reform. Others who spoke were Dr. Bruce, candidate for East York; C. A. Moss, J. A. MacDonald and Joseph Oliver.

Special luncheon served daily, 50c; table d'hôte dinner, 75c. Attractive surroundings and excellent French cuisine. Take elevator first floor up.

For Poor Richard's almanac. You can profit by his advice to abstain from buying any new thing, or you can begin with the porch rug and keep on buying and buying until your porch is sheltered with protecting awnings and screened with brass wire netting, until it is perfectly gorgeous with bamboo screens, serving trays and tea outfit. Just when you have it finished and find time to enjoy it you know what happens. Your neighbors decide it is a lovely place to have informal morning chats in, and all your plans for family talks and outdoor resting seem vanishing. You feel that the Englishman who wanted the earth for himself, with a fence around it, had about the right idea, only you had only wanted one little porch. There are cures for too frequent callers. At our house one summer all the "just happened ins" were set to hoeing beans and that worked fairly well, only they wanted the whole garden got in the fall. Fe found a better plan was to have darning at hand and when Madam Chatterbox arrived to "pass away an hour" to hand her a needle and the bit of work to do. Just you try this plan.

DANISH EXPEDITION TO MAKE NORTH POLE DASH

COPENHAGEN, June 20. — Ole Olson, a Danish millionaire, today undertook to finance a new north pole expedition under the command of Knud Rasmussen, the Danish Arctic explorer. The expedition probably will start for the north next summer, and will be provisioned for two years. All possible modern appliances are to be provided, and Rasmussen is to have a staff of scientists with him. He will establish his base at Cape York, Greenland.

Stops Stomach Pains IN TWO MINUTES.

The recent discovery by a leading specialist that pure bisphosphated magnesia will almost instantly relieve pains in the stomach resulting from indigestion, dyspepsia or acidity, is of the greatest importance to thousands of people suffering from various forms of stomach trouble. As is well-known, nine-tenths of all the stomach disorders are directly traceable to stomach acidity. One to two teaspoonfuls taken in a little water after meals not only neutralizes the acid and stops the pain, but quickly overcomes the cause of the trouble, soothes the inflamed lining of the stomach and in a short time will correct the cause. Be sure to ask your druggist to supply you with bisphosphated magnesia.
