

moreover, are now getting such awakenings, as well as facts and forces into their possession, as will yet save and redeem the nation, and with it their own great common interests.

Sunnubrae Farm
Croton Landing, N. Y.
November 1, 1906

College professors moan because no one reads their bloodless and wordy books on economics, but economics when dealt with straight from the shoulder by men who know the facts is to-day more popular than the most popular fiction, more interesting than the most interesting travels, better selling than any other form of literature. This is significant. The American people are gathering facts for future action. They want to be absolutely sure before they act, and then, get from under.—FROM A CURRENT EXCHANGE.