Summer Home Comforts

Whether you live in a house or in an apartment, the furnishings and decorations of the winter seem heavy and hot and stuffy as warm weather approaches. A little care and a moderate expenditure will repay the cost by the increased coolness they will give. Take up all your rugs and pack them away, replacing with clean matting or crex. All couch covers should be packed away in camphor or moth balls and those of extra linen substituted. Pillows of silk or heavy materials should not be left out; use plain ones of canvas or duck or any washable goods. Get rid of all draperies for doorways, mantelpieces and tables. Remove the heavy pictures from the walls and replace them with posters suggestive of outdoor life, or wrap them in cheesecloth covers and return to their places.

Do not hesitate to change the entire order of your house or apartment. Coolness is the first essential and appearance the last. Pick the coolest room as your bedroom, even if you have to put the parlor furniture into the hall closet. Use the thinnest of bedding and be sure that the circulation of air in your bedroom really circulates. Curtains for the windows may be made of dainty washable materials in plain patterns. The table may be covered with a brightly printed square which is found at the average department store.

The windows in the dining-room may be draped with each curtains of hemmed dotted swiss and the walls left entirely

She—What's that?
He—She won't tear up a love-letter, even after she's forgotten who wrote it.

THE LADIES' FRIEND IN THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY

Cleaning Carpets at Home

Now is the time to clean your carpets and rugs preparatory to their summer service or to preserve them if you wish to pack them away. If you have them cleaned by a professional cleaner be sure that they are thoroughly dry before putting them in the storeroom for the summer. If you are willing to undertake the work at home, do it systematically. First, take up your rugs and your carpets and have them beaten out of doors. The old-fashioned way of hanging them over a clothes line and then getting a husky man-of-all-work to whale them with a stout stick is not bad, even though our grandmothers did do it before us. Let them hang on the line for a while after they have been beaten. If you care to, you may wet the surface of your rugs with a preparation of ammonia to one-half of water and placed in the sun to dry thoroughly. If the rug is hung up while still damp, even in spots, it will rot. As each rug is rolled put in a generous supply of moth balls. Tie the completely rolled rug in heavy wrapping paper, so that no portion of it is exposed to the possible attack of moths. Place away in a storeroom and do not open until the fall. Grease spots should be taken out with a preparation of warm water and ammonia applied with a stiff brush. Some housekeepers advocate the sprinkling of salt on the rug to brighten its colors. The danger in this, however, that it is quite difficult to brush out all the salt, no matter how thoroughly you sweep, and in damp weather the absorption of moisture by the salt that remains ground in the rug will tend to rot it. If you take up your carpets and put them away, substituting summer floor coverings; they will be all the brighter and more pleasing when you replace them in the fall.

MODEL OF TILLEY MONUMENT IN JULY

And it is Planned to Have the Statue in Place in September of 1910.

George Robertson, receiver-general, said last night that, as chairman of the committee having in charge the proposed Tilley memorial, he and J. A. Belyea, as treasurer, have written to the sculptor, Philippe Hebert, accepting his offer for a model of the proposed monument to be submitted to them. The model will be one-eighth of the size of the monument and is to be ready for delivery early in July.

If the model is satisfactory to the committee the understanding is that Mr. Hebert will get the contract to furnish the monument which it is proposed to have in place in the early part of September, 1910.

THE WAY THEY USUALLY DO.
Maisie—She isn't a bit backward.
Morton—Ain't she? Well, I guess you never saw her get off a street car.
