As Hiram Sees It

"Hiram," said the Times reporter to Mr. Hiram Hornbeam "should we be thankful because the rain came yesterday, or ungrateful because it did not come on Saturday?"

"Well," said Hiram, "as far as bein' any effect on the weather that's gold to come—I'd say it don't make no difference how you feel about what you've just had—but as it's better than nothin' at all, I'd say it's a good thing."

"You mean that you're glad that you were able to help a fellow that was burnt out, the Lord 'ud chalk it up to your credit—but if you was any thankful you'd be lookin' at it the same way."

"He might not look at it the same way. It aint the thanks, Mister—it's the feelin' that you're givin' 'em that counts. You kin lay that down as a beginnin' an' then answer your own question—yes, sir."

Body of Missing Child Found Buried Under Stone

LITTLE SADIE McAULEY EVIDENTLY VICTIM OF BRUTAL MURDER

Discovery Made by Lad While Picking Berries Near Spot Where She Was Last Seen—People Greatly Incensed.

One of the most gruesome murders on record in the annals of crime in this city came to light this morning when the body of little Sadie McAuley was found hidden beneath two large boulders on the hill leading down to Marble Cove, the victim of a human monster.

The discovery was made by a young boy named James Kimball, who was picking berries on the hill when he noticed a large rock which he had just thrown, had struck a small object which he had just seen.

Kimball, who is about ten years of age, was picking berries on the hill when he noticed a large rock which he had just thrown, had struck a small object which he had just seen.
