

- Murat, Joachim, with Bonaparte defends the deputies of the Convention and brings forty cannon to Paris, 253
- Napoleon proclaimed Emperor, May 18, 1804 (for all events previous to this date, see Bonaparte), 270 proposes to invade England, 280, 281 decrees the Continental Blockade, 283 marries the Archduchess Marie-Louise, 284 kicks Volney in the stomach; his violence, 286 abducts the English Minister at Hamburg, 288 carries off the Pope, 288 sequesters the entire royal family of Spain, 289 declares war on Russia, 291-2 holds his court of sovereignty at Dresden, 292 enters Moscow, 293
his retreat from Russia, 294-5 his campaign against the Coalition in France, 296 change in his physical and moral nature, 297 his abdication and farewell, 297-8 receives the Empire of Elba, 297-9 his eleven months' exilium at Elba, 311 his return to France, 313 his triumphal progress to the Tuileries, 313-15
he promulgates the Additional Act, 318 he leads his army into Belgium, 321 is defeated at Waterloo, 322, 332
his second abdication, 333 offers to serve the Provisional Government as a simple General, 333 in despair gives himself up to the English, 334 is sent to Saint Helena, 334
- Napoleon Bonaparte II (the Younger) (born, 284) is brought up at Vienna, 297
- Necker, 177-8
- Ney, at Waterloo, 325-31
- Orléans, Louis, Duke of, brother of Louis XVI, 85-7 Philippe, Duke of, Regent of France for Louis XV, 154-5
his character, 154
his adoption of Law's system, 155-8 inaugurates a Liberal policy, 158 Louis-Philippe, Duke of, his character, 158 of Chartres serves with the army, 217
- Paris, becomes the capital of France, 31 supremacy of, during the Revolution, 222, 225
- Paulinus of Nola, preaches passion, 14 and solitude, 18
- Paulinus of Pella, his ideal of domestic life, 12
- Peace, Prince of (Godon), 289
- Pichegru, General, strangled in prison, 278
- Poitiers, battle of, 80
- Printing, discovery of, 102
- Rabelais, 111
- Reims, the Commune of, 117
to Saint Louis, 63
- Religion, wars of, their political character, 117-26
- Remy, Saint, Bishop of Reims, civilizes Clovis and three thousand Franks, 30
- Richelieu, Armand Duplessis, Cardinal de, his patriotism, 117 his policy, 134-5
- Rivoli, campaign of, 257
- Robespierre, Maximilian, foresees the modern conception of the Republic, 240
the cult of Paris for, 245