"BAKER" Wind Engines

The "BAKER" Wind Engine is built for heavy duty. Neat and compact in design. Do perfect work because they are built on principles that are absolutely correct, and the easiest-running mill made.

The wheel is built on a hub revolved on a long stationary steel spindle. As a result there is less friction.

It has a large number of small sails without rivets. The small sails develop the full power of the wind.

The engine is so constructed that the gears cannot wear out of mesh.

Has ball-bearing turntable, and self-regulating device.

All working parts are covered with a cast shield, thus protecting same from ice and sleet.

We make a full line of steel towers, galvanized steel tanks, pumps, etc.

All goods fully guaranteed. Write for catalogue No. 58.

To Progress—Save

Most people can make money, and many think they are progressing when their income increases.

No matter how large the increase in your income, if you continue to spend it all you have made but little advancement.

You truly progress when you save a certain portion of your salary, because when you do that you soon have money with which to take advantage of money-making opportunities.
