

THE GOSPEL OF LABOR

THERE is a perennial nobleness, and even sacredness, in work. Were he never so benighted, forgetful of his high calling, there is always hope in a man that actually and earnestly works; in idleness alone is there perpetual despair.

All true work is sacred; in all true work, were it but true hand labor, there is something of divineness. Labor, wide as the earth, has its summit in heaven. Sweat of the brow; and up from that to sweat of the brain; sweat of the heart, instead of pestilential swamp, a green fruitful meadow with its clear-flowing stream. How blessed for the meadow itself, let the stream and its value be great or small! Labor is life; from the inmost heart of the worker rises his God-given force, the sacred celestial life-essence breathed into him by Almighty God; from his inmost heart awakens him to all nobleness, to all knowledge, "self-knowledge," and much else so soon as work fifty be- gins.

THOMAS CARLYLE (Born December 4, 1795; died February 4, 1881.)

GOLF AND STATESMANSHIP

Mr. Churchill, Minister of Munitions, was entertained at luncheon by the Aldwych Club at the Commodore Rooms, Great Queen Street, W. C., says the London Times. The chair was occupied by Sir Hedley Le Bas.

The chairman, in proposing the health of Mr. Churchill, said that when the War Cabinet made up its mind to give a little retaliation to the Germans for the inconvenience and discomfort they have occasioned during the last ten days, it was Mr. Churchill who would have to provide the machine and bombs to effect that object. Two or three years before the war it was rumored that Mr. Asquith was going to resign the Premiership and speculations were rife as to his successor. The newspapers stated that it was either Mr. Lloyd George or Mr. Churchill, and that the rivalry between them was so great that they were not on speaking terms. He (the chairman) was asked to play golf with them and Mr. Masterman. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill were joking about the statement, and when the foursome reached the first green Mr. Churchill said to Mr. Lloyd George, "As we are rivals for the Premiership I will put you for the job." (Laughter.) They putted and both missed. (Loud Laughter.)

AN OLD TIMER

The bark Charles W. Morgan, said to be the oldest whaling vessel in the world, entered the harbor of New Bedford, Mass. the other day, with a cargo valued at $30,000, consisting of 1,100 barrels of sea elephant oil and one hundred barrels of sperm oil.

Seven detectives, two policemen and one woman were killed. The bomb, evidently with a time fuse attached, was found in the basement of the church.

LAWLESSNESS IN MANCHURIA

Peking, Nov. 27.—Lawlessness is increasing in Harbin, where foreigners have been attacked and robbed. The consular representatives have intimated to the Russian authorities that unless guarantees are forthcoming for the protection of the lives and property of foreigners they will endeavor to bring in British, American and Japanese troops to work in conjunction with the Russian and Chinese administrations for the preservation of public safety.

They arrived hurriedly at the fifth inning. "What the score, Jim?" He asked a fan. "Nothing to nothing," was the reply. "Oh, goody," she exclaimed. "We haven't missed a thing!"—Life.
