GRAVE MENACE

Inadequate Mains Imperil Safety of Ursuline Academy and General Hospital—Defect to be Remedied at Once

The letter received at last night's meeting of the Council from the ladies of Ursuline Academy revealed the existence of a grave menace to the safety of that institution and the Public General Hospital in case of fire. It seems that the present mains in that vicinity are entirely inadequate to furnish a sufficient volume of water.

The Waterworks Department was ordered to construct a six-inch main along Emma street to Violet, where it will connect with the Head street main. This will ensure a sufficient volume of water to protect the institutions named in case of fire.

MOYER MURDER

Suspect Johnson Makes Admissions that are Practically Confessions

(Special to The Planet.)

Detroit, Aug. 9.—Capt. McDonnell had another long conversation with Harry Johnson, one of Moyer's alleged murderers, Tuesday afternoon.

"He is very voluble," said the captain, "and talks quite freely. He certainly makes no confession, but he makes so many admissions and confessions, that, in effect, his talk is better than a confession. I think that if I would promise him immunity he would tell us everything."

"Of course that is out of the question. I can't help being impressed with the kind of fellow he is. He is certainly the most gentle and mild-mannered prisoner we have had in here, especially for a person accused of such a brutal murder."

CLARKE FUND DISPOSED OF.

Money Subscribed is Securely Invested and Trustees Appointed

Toronto, Aug. 9.—This fund has reached an amount something over $11,000, nearly the whole of which has already been securely invested and the remaining will no doubt be put into some satisfactory investment within a very short time.

Mr. E. B. Oiler, M. P., who has had charge of this fund, after consulting with two old friends of the late Mr. Clarke, both members of prominent legal firms, arranged, with the concurrence of Mrs. Clarke, for a settlement of the fund upon trustees for the benefit of Mrs. Clarke and her family, on the general principle of payment of the income to Mrs. Clarke for the maintenance of herself and children, the principal to be ultimately divided among the children. The Toronto General Trusts Corporation have been appointed their trustees.

DESTITUTION IN AFRICA.

Many Canadians Unable to Find Work in New Possessions.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Canada's commercial agent in South Africa, Mr. Kittson, in a private note to the Department, says that he has seen much destitution in South Africa among the natives out of employment. Work is very difficult to obtain and hundreds of natives are on the verge of starvation. Many have applied to the commercial agent for relief.

Mr. Kittson says there is a market for 400,000,000 worth yearly of food-stuffs in South Africa.

The commercial agent at Leeds, England, urges that all Canadian products should be branded "Canadian."

The British agent says that inferior fruit is not wanted in England.

VILLAGES ATTACKED.

Cuanhamas Massacre and Burn in Portuguese Africa.

Cologne, Aug. 9.—The Cologne Gazette prints a despatch that 4,000 Cuanhamas recently made an attempt on several Portuguese villages, located to the northward of German Southwest Africa, on Portuguese territory. Most of the villages, according to the report, were massacred, and all their homes burned.

Three French missionaries were carried away by the tribesmen, but succeeded in making their escape. The massacre occurred in the same region where a body of Portuguese troops suffered a serious defeat last year.

St. Thomas' Church Burns.

New York, Aug. 9.—St. Thomas' Episcopal church at Fifth avenue and 43rd street, one of the most richly furnished religious edifices in America, was wrecked by fire yesterday. Defective electric wiring is supposed to have started the fire. The loss is estimated by Fire Chief Croker as at least a quarter of a million dollars. Only a square shell of stone wall was left standing, and paintings and bas-reliefs, which alone were worth many thousands of dollars, were ruined. The sumptuous altar and chancel furnishings, including a $20,000 organ, were destroyed by the fire. The church has stood on its present site for 50 years.

The man who writes an old prospectus is generally a gusher.

How the Docile and Studious Members Communed with Nature

Incidents in a Delightful Outing to an Up-The-River Grove—Feast of Reason and Flow of Soul.

Those who saw them leave the boat house yesterday afternoon, quietly and sedately, canoe after canoe, took it seriously. "Strange fellows, those Macaulay Clubites! There they go: bound, I'll bet, for some silent spot where they can together ponder on the thoughts of great men, declaim the dissertations of antediluvian philosophy and commune with Nature. See that big package there in Musson's canoe? (Well, you can wager that's a dictionary or two, wedged in with some compendia of physical research and useful information. Nobody doubts that that big basket Scullard prods wearily onward contains encyclopedic information galore, or that Laurie and Beeston are eloquently arguing over the deep things of life, and Bell and Arnold are righting some of the gravest international complications. That awed look of Collins and Angus and Coltart demonstrates that they are eagerly, rapturously, drinking in the intellectual atmosphere of the occasion, while it is morally certain that the conversation Mowbray and Anderson are carrying on is far removed from football tangles or regimental affairs."

And so they paddled under the bridge and majestically moved from sight.

Up the placid river, propelled by muscular arms, sped the canoes. Snatches of song, verses of poetic quotation, wit-inspired by the rich and variegated foliage of the river banks, which Nature has strewn with such artistic abandon, lit by the gay and golden glints of the western sun—while away the pleasant trip. Onward they glided and—

"Whoa! Whoa! I say—W-H-O-A!" It was Doc Arnold's agitated, strident falsetto.

Old Salt Beeston started up in anger. "How couldst thou?—a sailor, a nautical man! Whoa, indeed! There's no cattle around here."

"It's a horse on Arnold," murmured Angus, sotto voce.

"Whoa—I mean, beg pardon, Port your helm!" screamed Doc, still much agitated.

"Where in helm's the port?" cried Coltart excitedly.

But the canoe swung gracefully around and avoided the threatening pile.

An anxious moment occurred at the foliage-hidden outlet of the creek, when Musson's canoe—indefatigable as usual—persisted in making the bow-like entrance. For a moment it appeared that the party must lose the creek, but with admirable presence of mind Scullard took after him and saved the day. It may be mentioned incidentally that the ice was in Scullard's canoe.

Prospectus Laurie at length located a haven about three miles up and a landing was effected. Only one mariner fell overboard—but this was on the return trip, and he doesn't want it mentioned. Skipper Beeston soon had his men chasing for firewood, and in a few moments a splendid fire was blazing. Mowbray, the watch-dog of the party, discovered Bell secretly secreting something in the hollow of a big log—and he sat on that self-same log all evening. Coltart got enthusiastically busy in the refrigerator. These facts can all be borne out by the first photo taken by Dr. Musson—an unexpected snapshot.

While the commissariat was being prepared, Scullard was delegated to get some pure water for the tea. That he slid with infinite grace upon the small—or large—of his back to the river's brink enabled him to make time. The spring was located some, where near the centre of the river, just where is Mr. Scullard's secret. Beeston brewed the tea and everyone wanted the recipe. "Put in lots of tea," was the laconic response.

Doc Arnold distributed the papers. He said that "The Planet" was, of course, the only paper they read and that was the reason he brought the copies along.

It would be unfair to say what was eaten and how much—but at any rate there was no opportunity to fill the wickets with the fragments which remained. "I only wish Fred Stone were here," groaned Mowbray as he reached for another—the thirteenth—devilled egg.

"He's on a Sunday school picnic to Walpole Island," declared Collins. "Ah," mused Dr. Musson as he exhaled the smoke from his glowing perfecto, "I can see him now on the return trip: crowded, jostled and perspiring, seeking to maintain some semblance of order while J. W. White leads in the soulful singing."

As night fell the lanterns were lit and an impromptu program of wit and song inaugurated. Then came the embarkation for home and the happy party bunched canoes and floated Chathamward singing. Dr. Musson inaugurated the club yell—"M-A-C-A-U-L-A-Y, Mac-a-u-lay-Club."

And the outing was over.
