THE MILLERS' GIFTS.

Messrs. S. A. McGaw, and Chas, M.

About five o'clock on Saturday aftercon the engine room of the Harbor Mills was filled by a smiling crowd, com posed chiefly of employees of the mill, and a sprinkling of local politicians, press men, lake captains and habitues of the harbor. The gathering had been called at a short notice to witness the presentation of a gold watch to Mr. S. A. Mc Gaw, book-keeper at the mill, who is about to remove to a lucrative real-estate business in Winnipeg; and the gift of a gold ring to Mr. C. M. Mitchell, the first engineer of the mill, who has been promoted to a similar position in the Winnipeg Mill owned by Messrs. Ogilvie.

The proceedings opened by Mr. Mitchell being called to the front and placed in a chair at the head of the room. Mr. W. H. Murney then stepped forward, and facing Mr. Mitchell, read the following address, Mr. James Stewart handing the ring to the recipient at the proper time:

To Mr. Chas. Mitchell. Chief Engineer Goderich Harbor Mills.

They were always prompt in their payment of wages, and in the resident partner they would find a gentleman who was always ready to listen to any grievance and remedy it. He had left the establishment not because he did not think the firm and the men cared for him, for their conduct showed him that they had every confidence in him. he intended to engage in business in a distant Province just opening up. The kind present just made him would always be a memento of their friendship and confidence, and as the hand of Time placed its furrows on the brow of all, he trusted all would look back to the hours spent in such agreeable friendship. Closing, he said that he thanked them not with his tongue only, but from his
