LONDON, To-day.
Severe fighting occurred in the attempt of Montenegrins to capture Scutari. Montenegrins it is reported have taken Bardanj Hill, one of the strategic positions, but at a cost of 2,500 men killed and wounded. The same despatch place the Turkish loss at 4,000 men. Thousands of fresh troops have been arriving at Constantinople from Anatolia in the past few days. Several troop-ships have departed, but the destination has not been divulged. There are signs that the Porte realizes the hopelessness of the situation and is preparing the way to leave the fate of Turkey in the hands of Europe and obtain the best possible settlement.

SYDNEY, To-day.
A message from Capt. Taylor, of the s.s. Invermore, which arrived at North Sydney, is to the effect that while steaming across the Gulf, his ship sighted a schooner fast in the ice, with all sails set. Her position at that time was east by northeast. Considering the conditions, Capt. Taylor made a good run to North Sydney. He experienced a strong W.N.W. gale till about 35 miles from the Cape Breton coast, when a heavy loose field of drift ice was met. The Invermore worked through without accident. It is not likely that the North Sydney Port aux Basques route will be resumed for some weeks. The Bruce and Invermore are going to St. John's direct.

MEXICO CITY, To-day.
General Felix Diaz, whose hold stroke on Sunday almost overthrew the Madero Administration, held his army in the lurch yesterday, nor did the scattered Government forces dare to attack him in his fortified positions in and about the Arsenal, still hoping he might attain a complete control without further loss of life and destruction of property. General Diaz surprised the Capital by refraining from turning his heavy guns upon the National Palace. The Government's position has not been materially altered. That peace negotiations, official or otherwise, were in progress became known early, but owing to secrecy enveloping them few outside the principals knew the details; excellent order prevails throughout.

If you want to spend a pleasant evening come to the Floral Sociable at the Congregational Lecture Hall on Wednesday, the 12th inst. A good programme has been prepared, a special feature of which is "A Mutiny Amongst the Flowers." Admission 30c. Doors open at 7.30 p.m.—feb11,2i

Enquiry Continued.

Yesterday the drowning enquiry was continued when Patrick Mallard, who was working at A. Harvey & Co's coal premises, was sworn and examined. He saw the 'John Green' steam down the harbor and take the boat in tow. When opposite Harvey's wharf he heard a cry from the boat "Hold on! Hold on!" This was repeated three times. The tug was then between 30 and 40 yards distant from the pier. It was getting dark and he watched the boat until she disappeared. Could not say whether she sunk or otherwise.

George Pearce, who witnessed the happening from the deck of the s.s. Bellaventure, at Harvey's wharf, swore that the tug was going too fast. He remarked that the boys looked wet. He heard a shout and when about to look the boat disappeared. He remarked the boat is gone, men and all.

Richard Bailey sworn and examined. He saw the John Green tow the boat. He heard shouts but could not hear distinctly. He did not see what happened the boat when she passed alongside the Bellaventure as it was getting dark.

Portia Sails.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, sailed this afternoon for the Westward taking as saloon passengers: C. F. Bishop, Mrs. Windsor, Dr. McKenzie, J. F. Lake, S. Winsor, Mrs. Burke, J. Edstrom and wife, Mrs. Bellban, Miss O'Leary, A. J. Burke, Messrs. Doherty and Hart and 20 in steerage.

Notes and Comments.

The most pathetic circumstance of the Scott expedition is that the party which made for the South Pole should have perished after their quest had been successful.

But they had accomplished their life work in the heroic effort they made and they died with full knowledge that the object they had set before them had been attained. This must have been of much consolation to them in their last moments.

They knew they had not died in vain and that the relief expedition would in all likelihood find their bodies and their records, and the world would learn of their great achievement.

From the scanty information to hand the world is left in doubt as to the number of the party which perished. It is stated in the message that it is believed that 66 (?) scientists and sailors lost their lives.

This is not credited by others, who believe that the party which perished was the small one that made the final dash for the South Pole. That party is supposed to have consisted of Capt. Scott, Dr. Wilson, Capt. Oates, Lieut. Scott, and Petty Officer Evans.

The latter belief is by far the more probable. It is hardly credible that all the members of the Antarctic Expedition should have perished. There would be in any case a party left at headquarters, and there would likely be others who would take stages of the journey to carry forward supplies, who would not be in the final stage of the dash for the South Pole.

The uncertainty arises from the only information available to the world was signalled from the S. S. Terra Nova to the port of Oamaru, New Zealand, which then passed on to Littleton where she is due on Saturday.

From the report it would appear that Capt. Scott and his party arrived at the South Pole a month after Amundsen had been there, and the intelligence has been delayed from the fact that it was only late last year that the Terra Nova returned to the Antarctic to pick up the expedition, and then they learnt the disaster which she has given out to the world.

The Wish Father to the Thought.

This morning we drew Sir Robert Bond's attention to an article in this morning's Daily News headed "The Grange Reported Sold," and enquired if there was any truth in the report of the sale of his private residence. Sir Robert replied no. It is not sold, and has never been offered for sale in the English or any other papers. We were quite sure when we read the article that it was simply a canard. The wish was no doubt father to the thought, for the Daily News and its political associates are very anxious to have Sir Robert Bond out of the political arena next fall, and nothing would give them greater joy than to know for certain that the field was clear of their formidable opponent.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Feb. 11, 1913.
In Morrola you will find a first class tonic and builder for the cold weather. The basis of Morrola is Cod Liver Oil of the best quality, but so disguised as to be quite pleasant to the taste and grateful to the stomach, being deprived of its fatty portions. Iron in an easily assimilated form is skillfully combined therewith rendering the mixture a splendid tonic in cases of general debility, nervous exhaustion, anaemia, impoverished blood, loss of appetite, and in convalescence after lingering illness. Large bottle, $1.

For all nervous and muscular pains—neuralgia, cramps, etc. Red Cross Oil is readily effective, and it is also very useful in many kinds of internal pains. Highly concentrated, a little does the work. Price, 25c. a bottle.

HIGH GRADE GROCERIES, FOR THE LENT SEASON.
