The Untiring Energy

of the Wolf is proverbial. Practically no energy is required where SUNLIGHT SOAP is employed. Sunlight Soap is energy itself. The Wolf is the enemy of mankind; is the enemy of all dirt. It is the friend of the housewife, and is made for her profit. To the housewife it means less labour, less dirt, more leisure, and time and money saved. SUNLIGHT SOAP does away with needless rubbing and scrubbing, and so preserves the clothes.

With one phase of the "after the war" campaign I cannot seem to agree. If we are looking to this war to establish the rule of Right, and have done in this connection, which I shall present to the public for their consideration.

As regards the charter itself, it is not clear if the city will adopt it simply because it proves favorable to the House of Assembly. In most cases of new charters the question is put to the people and they decide if it is acceptable to them. In any case I

Germany Under War Conditions

The Friedenswarte punctures the osatful statements of the German secretary of the treasury concerning the prosperity of the Empire What, it asks, is the object of all this eloquence? Is it to prove that under hese flourishing circumstances Germans should be satisfied with the coninuance of the war, and that they should no longer regret their vanished trade? In quieter times, says the peace journal, wise economists pointed out that war was the most unpromake his countrymen believe the contrary. The war begins to have disastrous nsequences for German newspapers ithout a sound financial foundation. Raw material, in the shape of paper and ink, is said to have risen to incredible heights, labor grows more scarce and must be higher paid, and the public grows less inclined to advertise. We hear that in all parts of Germany the Kase Zeiungen - those newspapers whose final destination is to serve for wrapping up cheese-are rapidly disappearing with a valedic-
