NOGALES, Ariz., April 17. Jack Greene, who was found dead here on Monday night with a discharge ed derringer beside him, according to papers found among his effects, was the Right Hon. Lieut. Jackson B. Argyle, son of the Countess of Darnley, Kent County, England, to whom he left a letter. His papers showed he enlisted in 1914 in the fourth Bat-talion of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, and was discharged in March, 1917. He had three bayonet wounds and a bullet wound in his thighs. He worked here as a time-keeper under the name of Greene and had said his health was shattered by his Army service. The body was found before the home of young woman to whom he is said to have paid attention.
