J. ALEX. ROBINSON, Postmaster General.

With Colors Flying.

Gallantry of a Naval Lieutenant.

Thrilling deeds of valor under the Ensign were wrought by three gallant officers who died in action, and whom the V. C. has been awarded. Prominent among the trio is Lieut. Archibald Bisset Smith, R.N.R., who showed great gallantry and devotion when in command of the ship Otaqui on March 10, 1917. The Otaqui, which only carried one 4.7 inch gun, sighted the German raider Emden, which called upon the Otaqui to stop. This Lieut. Smith refused to stop, and a duel ensued at ranges of 2,000-2,000 yards, and lasted for about 15 minutes. The Otaqui scored several hits on the Emden, causing considerable damage and starting a fire, which lasted for three hours. She sustained several casualties and received much damage herself, and was heavily on fire. Lieutenant Smith, therefore, gave orders for the boats to be lowered to save the crew to be rescued. He remained on the ship himself, and went down with her when she sank with the British colours still flying, after what was described in an enemy account as "a duel as gallant as naval history can relate."

control, and as the air supply was nearly exhausted, Lieut.-Commander White decided to run the risk of proceeding on the surface. Heavy fire was immediately opened from both sides, and, after running the gauntlet for half-an-hour, being steered from below, E-14 was so badly damaged that Lieut.-Commander White turned towards the shore in order to give the crew a chance of being saved. He remained on deck the whole time himself.

Lieut. Frederick Parslow, R.N.R., showed conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of the horse transport Anglo-Cornwallian on July 4, 1915. A large submarine was sighted on the port beam at a distance of about one mile. The ship, which was unarmed, was immediately manoeuvred to bring the submarine astern; every effort was made to increase speed, and an S.O. B. was sent out by wireless, an answer being received from a man-of-war. At 9 a.m. the submarine opened fire, and maintained a steady fire, making occasional hits, until 10.20 a.m., when it hoisted the signal to "abandon the vessel as fast as possible." In order to save life, Lieut. Parslow decided to obey, but on receiving a wireless from a destroyer urging him to hold on, he decided to get away on the ship again. The submarine then opened a heavy fire, wrecking the upper bridge, killing Lieut. Parslow, and carrying away one of the port davits, causing the boat to drop into the sea and throwing its occupants into the water. At about eleven o'clock two destroyers arrived on the scene, and the submarine dived. Throughout the attack Lieut. Parslow remained on the bridge, on which the enemy fire was concentrated, entirely without protection, and his magnificent heroism succeeded, at the cost of his own life, in saving a valuable ship and cargo for the country.

Cochrane St. Church.

CLOSES SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

Cochrane Street Methodist Centennial Church has evidently, had a banner year, according to the tabulated results prepared for the coming sessions of the Methodist Conference, for the Church year, which ended on the 31st May, and as read by the minister, the Rev. Dr. Bond, (at the request of the Official Board) during the service last evening. The results are most satisfactory both as regards the Church membership and finances. There has been an increase in the membership of seventy-five. The Women's Missionary Society as well as the Women's Association have done noble work, the former having raised ten hundred and twenty-three dollars, nearly twenty-five per cent. over the previous year. The Layman's Missionary Committee worked splendidly, the objective of three thousand dollars was raised with an additional increase of eighty dollars.

The grand total of all monies received was twenty-six thousand five hundred and eighty dollars, truly a gratifying and magnificent amount. The duplex envelope system at the Sunday services works well and weekly and systematic giving has added much to the success of the year. Although this church carries a very heavy debt on its new building, its congregation is very optimistic. We congratulate Dr. Bond, the officials and the whole congregation on the splendid report both as regards the increase in membership and finances.

The Congregational Pulpit.

"Life's most important question?" was the Rev. Dudley B. Ashford's subject on Sunday night. If we could take a census of people's views on this question, what a variety of opinions we should get. Some would say that life's most important question is "How can I get rich quickly?" Others would answer, "How can I manage to get a 'script' or 'When is the next dance'?" or "how can I escape death?" Such are some of the questions which men consider to be important to-day. In Matthew 22, we find some of the questions which troubled men in the time of Christ. On the face of it they were all asked by people who were manifestly insincere. There was the question of the Pharisees for example. The Pharisees were the ultra-patriotic party who hated the Romans like poison. They asked Jesus "Is it right to give tribute to Caesar or not?" They were merely seeking to entrap Jesus in his speech. In answer Jesus simply said, "Show me a penny." "Whose is the superscription?" "Caesar's," they replied. "Then render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things which are God's." It was a crushing reply. Then came the Sadducees, who did not believe in the Resurrection, with their question about the woman who had seven husbands. "Whose would she be in the day of the resurrection?" Jesus replied that in Heaven there is neither marriage nor giving in marriage. Next came the Lawyers with their question as to which is the greatest commandment, to which Jesus replied, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart."

Colin Campbell, Ltd.

An Efficient Sleuth.

(From the London Express.)

The London consul of a continental kingdom was informed by his government that one of his countrywomen, supposed to be living in Great Britain, had been left a large fortune. After advertising without result he applied to the police, and a clever young detective was set to work. A few weeks later his chief asked how he was getting on. "I've found the lady, sir."

"Good. Where is she?"
"At my place. I married her yesterday."

Prince's Visit to U. S. Seems to be Assured.

London, England, June.—Among the leading members of the American colony in London there is much gratification expressed over the proposed visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States, which is now believed to be assured. Many of them have met his royal highness and they have been so much impressed by his frank and unassuming democratic ways that they are certain that his visit to our shores will go far to aid the mutual understanding in both countries so earnestly desired.

Abbey's

Speaking personally the attributes of the prince are his adaptability, frankness, modesty and love of fair play. His presence in the United States for a week would totally revise the erroneous ideas held by many Americans regarding British royalty.
