

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread; it coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Packets (two sizes) may be obtained everywhere.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

SOMETHING WE CAN ALL HAVE.

The other evening I went past a large dormitory of one of the largest and supposedly the best colleges in the country.

Most of the shades were up. And from the hundred or so rooms in the dormitory the lights gleamed out into the darkness, and I was immediately struck by the fact that practically all of these lights were high lights.

Think of it! This is called a rich man's college and yet those men were studying and reading night after night by a light which unquestionably creates a strain on the eyes.

A Crank on Low Lights.

I suppose I am a crank on low lights. But it does seem to me that both from the point of utility and from the point of beauty, a room lighted solely by high lights is absolutely inexcusable.

There is no single feature that adds so much to the attractiveness of a room as a low light well placed and with an attractive shade.

And who is so poor that he cannot afford to have such a light in his living room? Or in his kitchen or dining room, if that is where he sits?

A Good Old Kerosene Lamp.

Perhaps some of my readers took exception to my statement that few were so poor as not to be able to afford a low light with an attractive shade. Perhaps they said "attractive shades cost money." Some do and some don't. The things that make a shade attractive are its colors and its lines, and one can sometimes get good lines and colors in the least expensive as well as the most expensive things. Besides, the clever woman can cover her own shade to suit herself.

Restoring Nerve Power.

In many people the tissues of the nerves have suffered from the strain of War and from the shortage of fats. You can restore your nerves in a natural way by eating "Skippers." The pure olive oil in which they are packed is worth its weight in gold to those who suffer from "fat-starved" nerves.

Your retailer will supply you with a tin of

"SKIPPERS."

A guarantee on every can.

Cascarets

If people would only realize that beauty in the home is not dependent upon the costliness of the furnishings, they would create far pleasanter homes. In the most charming house I have ever heard of, there was not a thing costly. All the rugs were rag rugs made from old carpets. But they were thick and pleasant to stand upon and they harmonized perfectly with the general scheme of the room.

An Unattractive Expensive Room.

Again I was taken to the home of a relative of a relative (no, that is not a mistake in typing). I had heard great tales of the latter's handsome home. We sat in a room with some ill-chosen expensive furniture and a single high light which gave an impressively dreary effect to the whole. Seldom have I been in a less attractive room.

I love to walk along the streets in some of the finer sections of the city and see the lights gleam out from under their beautiful shades in the darkness, like great glowing jewels. There is one house in which in every room are several low lights. I happen to know that it is the home of a woman noted for her perfect taste and skill as an interior decorator.

There are so many things that are beautiful that we can only enjoy from a distance—but proper lighting is something that, as I before remarked, all but the absolutely poverty stricken can have if they want it enough.

OFFICERS' BANQUET.

Last night in the Club Rooms, George Street, the newly elected officers of St. John's Lodge, No. 5, of the above Order, celebrated their installation by giving a banquet to the Brethren. Last night's affair was very pleasant and fraternal exchanges were a marked feature.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Sachem is due from Liverpool to-morrow.

S.S. Sagona on her last trip across the Cabot Straits met with very stormy weather and was several hours late in reaching Port aux Basques.

S.S. Dario is still detained in port, until an agreement in connection with the salvage charges has been made with the owners of the Storborg.

Conditions in Fish Industry of East.

Experiment of Government Guarantees in Newfoundland—No Failures in N.S.

Halifax—Newfoundland has suffered heavily in respect to business failure owing to the demoralized condition of the fish trade and the decline in the foreign markets. The report from Newfoundland is that there were 44 failures with liabilities of $1,722,365, compared with which were assets of $1,063,784.

The government's guarantee that Newfoundland exporters should not be allowed to lose at any figure bought below $8 per quintal has helped the situation there, but how long this will last or how much it will save in the long run remains to be seen.

Almost the same conditions prevail in the fish trade of Nova Scotia as in Newfoundland, but so far no failures are reported. The firms engaged in the business are strongly entrenched and accumulated resources during the good years of the war. Lunenburg is a heavy loser this year, but no part of the province is better able to stand a period of depression and even of loss than the thrifty and shrewd men who are engaged in the bank fishery and the business of outfitting there. The savings bank deposits in Lunenburg are greater per capita than anywhere else in the province and the past three years were wonderfully profitable.

The above article taken from the Financial Post of Jan. 7th, may be characterized as another blue ruin article, and will perhaps arouse the ire of our Trade Commissioner in the great metropolis of the U.S.A. It may, however, put things in a truer light to state that the cause of the great failures, which occurred, chiefly on the West Coast, was not the decline in the foreign market, but rather that the great suppliers there were hampered by the Fish Regulations, which imposed unfair restrictions. These restrictions closed the markets to the usual consumption, hence the demoralized conditions.
