Fads and Fashions.

Afternoon frocks are combinations velvets, Roshanara crepes or other crepes with colored brocades and ouches of embroidery.

Beading in steel blue and charteuse hades is used on a formal evening gown of velvet, featuring both the loused back and side drapery.

Huge hats—their soft brims irreguarly bent, their trimming varied kinds of artistic ornaments-will be worn for afternoon and evening. Large hats seem to be entirely trimmed with laces. They are laid over the brim in draped effects, or hung off the brim in curtain edges. Some very charming evening frocks have a narrow hem stuffed with cotton. The effect is good, especially as the skirt is so much longer.
