THE LATEST SOANDAL. Mr. Tarte, the Conservative M. P. who has undertaken the exposure of the Mc-Breevy-Langevin public works scandals, seerts that instead of $700,000 or $800,000 having been wrongfully paid out by Sir Heetor Langevin and friends, he has doonments in his possession to prove that the total peculations from the Dominion the enormous total of $2,000,000. The continual oropping up of scandalons proceedings in connection with the letting overwhelming domand from the electors, of contracts for public works goes a long way to compel intelligent investigators to place trust in Mr. Tarte's assertion. One soundal is not probed to the bostom before another is brought to the surface to shock the sober sensi-bilities of Parliament and of the country. In the letting of almost every public pears to have been crookedness, and it is ariginal excuse that all these irregularities that would have demonstrated, in the most and over-payments for extras, all these effectual manner, whether or not there was nanipulations of contracts by the agency of bogus tenders, and in the interests of subscribers to the Conservative election necessary to its enforcement. funds, were carried out without the knowl-

Parliament has just been startled by the in another contract-letting The Quebec and Esquimalt scandal manipulations are in process of revela-tion before the Privileges and Elections Committee of the House of Commi What will now be known as the Kingston of determining the percentage of butter graving dock scandal was, in part, laid bare by Mr. Wm. Gibson, M. P. for Lincoln, in the House of Commons last (Thurs- as the lactoscope method was, but as our day) night. Mr. Gibson, as many readers of the Advertiser know, is one of the most reliable contractors in the country, and it is concerting that in these days of conis opportune that in these days of contract-letting rascality the representatives of the people should be able to have his expert aid in exposing the means by which these wholesale robberies have been car-

When the Kingston graving dock tenders were called for in 1889, Mr. Gibson was not in public life, and he was a tenderer. With the other legitimate tenderers, he was somewhat astonished to find that the lowest tenderer for the work was a Mr. Bancroftperfectly unknown to himself or to any of the other contractors who competed Bancroft got the work at $260,680 75, on a promise to take the Connollys in with him. These are the same men who figured as generous friends to Sir Hector Langevin in the Quebec and Esquimalt contrac scandals. The original specifications called for an entrance to the dock 48 feet wide. Then came an offer to widen the entrance to 60 feet, the work to be done at no greater cost than for a 48-foot entrance. equently the resident engineer, a son of Chief Engineer Perley, who is a witness in the other scandal cases, recommended that 55 feet be the width, and strange to relate the result of this change was the passage of an order in council by the Dominion Government authorizing the pay-ment of $34,000 extra for the work.

Neither Sir Hector Langevin nor anyone else in the House could explain why, if a 60-foot entrance could be provided without additional cost, a payment of $34,000 ald be granted for the 55-foot entrance. Here Mr. Gibson's expert testimony proved valuable, for he asserted, what seems en ly reasonable on the face of that there should have been 20 increase in price for widening the entrance. A deduction should rather have been made, for there is really less assonry required to make a 55-foot ing than a 48-foot entrance. But this is not all: While the "Bancroft"-Connolly cofferdam at this work for $25,000 they have been paid $10,000 additional for that work, and there are other "extras" in connection with the dam that bring the total up to $16,520, showing that for this porion of the job, contracted for $25,000, $41-520 has been paid.

It only remains to be stated that the engineers now assert that the work cannot be olished for less than an estimated cost of $350,000, or $90,000 above what it

The queerest feature of the case is that elating to Bancroft, the mysterious tenderer. Sir Hector Langevin and his associates ask it to be believed that they gave over this great public work to "Bancroft" without knowing one lota about his antecedents. Indeed, Bancroft must be ranked as the must mysterious personage that has been brought upon the public stage for many a day. He, or some one who passed for him, rented a box at the postoffice at Kingston about the time the tenders were received. After the enders were given out nothing more was heard of him, and to crown the mystery Postmaster General Haggart asks the pub-ic to believe that it is impossible, by the records of his subordinates at Kingston, to in any way trace Bancroft, or to learn how, when and by whom his postoffice hox was rented. They must either have a very loose way of doing business at Kingston, or the Minister in alarge of the office must have a warm sympathy for the afflicted managers of the Public Works Department. It is incredible that it a city of the size and importance of Kingston, the postofflee authorities should keep no record of the names of those renting boxes or the rent paid by them. In all well-regulated offices, a book is kept for this purpose, and from it, at any time, can be obtained the information which the Postmaster-General assures Parliament does not exist. Under all the circum-ceal this damaging fact. So far, the developments all tend to point to the absolute necessity for speedily effecting a complete clearance of the nest of cormorants who have been fattening at the public expense these long years.

should insist that further payments for this work should be delayed till all the papers were placed before the House. The belief, of course, is that Bancroft was a myth, and that the authorities are now anxious to con-

Mr. INGRAM, the discredited M. P. for East Elgin, will need more than the militia camp to secure his re-election. He dodged the vote condemning Sir Charles Tupper's attack upon the Grand Trunk but "in a moment of weakness," he has since defended Sir Charles Tupper's scandalous conduct.

THERE are one or two cases on record where the present Ottawa Government re-fused to pay for "extras" that were earned and petitioned for. The local losers by the refusal now wish that they had known the secret of how to pay a substantial sum for "charitable pur poses." Such a payment always brought substantial results to the great contracting firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co.

gentlemen who, when election day comes, will subscribe royally to the election funds of the Tory party, their protector. What do they care for $100,000 to keep the Libersis from office? That sum is hardly worth speaking of, for there are millions left. The elections only come once in four years, and the distillers make a royal fortune every month.

WHY NOT IN THE PROCESSION The Unexpected Appearance of "D Company at the Park on Dominion Day and Some Questions Con-

"If instructions were received from headquarters that 'D' Company, I. S. C., should turn out and assist in our Dominion day celebration it would have shown much better grace on the part of the local authorities had they ordered the corps to icin in the procession and not merely come join in the procession and not merely come ever to the park by a back street to fire a low shots with the other military in the feu-de-joie," was a remark of which a member of the School Board Demonstration Committee delivered himself.

The decision of the latter dignitary did not reach the demonstration committee, and many of them were surprised to see "D" Company march over and join the Seventh and the artillery corps at the park after the procession. From this they surmised that the Ottawa authorities had favorably considered their petition and issued orders to the authorities at the London barracks to act accordingly. "If this be the case," remarked the trustee," why did not the officers inform us of the fact in order to avoid conflict in the arrangements? It would have been an act of courtesy on their part to have allowed the men in the Queen's uniform to join the procession and aid as much as possible in a patriotic celebration of Canada's national holiday. It seems to me that the D. A. G. hardly cared to make too much display because his and eems to me that the D. A. G. hardly cared

The fact is that the immigration policy of the Dominion Government has been a dis-astrous failure. The money spent has been misapplied, and its trade policy, which taxes the settler up to the hilt on every-thing he uses, seems to be ingeniously in-tended to counteract, so far as possible, the fertility of our soil and the efforts of the La Patrie, of Montreal, calls attention to the whisky combine, which is enabled by the policy of the Dominion Government to charge half a dozen prices for its product.

At the current price of grain, according to our contemporary, the manufacture of a gallon of whisky costs 14 cents, but the makers charge 75 cents in bond, and when the excise duty is added the price to the consumer is very high. The reason why the manufacturers can charge such a price is that there are only four of them in the Dominion—none of the other Provinces Dominion—none of the other Province except Ontario being blessed (or cursed with a distillery—and the policy of the Government makes it impossible for another distillery to be started in competition with those existing. These in competition with those existing. There is a law which forbids the selling of wisky less than two years old, and it would take an enormous capital to start and run a distillery without selling a gallon of the product for the first two years. This state of affairs makes the present monopoly and combination possible years. This state of affairs makes the present monopoly and combination possible. La Patrie says that there is in Ontario one distillery which puts upon the market every day 10,000 gallons of whisky. Its profit—the difference between 75 cents and 14 cents per gallon—is $6,100 per day, or $1,630,000 per year. There are, adds La Patrie, four of this calibre—four fine gentlemen who, when election day comes, will subscribe royally to the election funds will subscribe royally to the election funds.

It appears that a sub-committee waited upon Col. Smith at the barracks and asked very reasonable demand for a popular vote that the red-coats be permitted to form a feature in the day's proceedings. A great feature in the day's proceedings. A great deal of persuasion was used, but the required assent could not be proured.

The committee then laid their request before Minister of Militia Sir Adolphe Caron, who replied that he had referred it to Gen. Herbert, the commander of the Canadian militia.
