Then, once for all, I will tell you, but you must promise me that you will never tereal it to any living person, and never the speak of it again to me," said Miss Kavanagh, bracing herself for what she saw must come. "Annie French was a poor seamstress who worked for me: she was in the house for months at a time. Alian, my brother, fell in love with her pretty face and secretly married her He pretty face and secretly married her. He knew that our father, who was a very proud man, and I also, would never consent to such a union, and so he took the matter into his own hands. Our father was very feeble at that time; we knew that he could not live many months, and Allan meant to keep his marriage a secret only as long as he should live. He said he would have waited, only he could not bear to see the girl working so hard for her living, and he wanted the right to take care of her. Business—a lawsuit in connection with some present, which had ction with some property which had been left to us—suddenly called him abroad, and he was obliged to leave his— her behind. She was not well, and he was her behind. She was not well, and he was greatly distressed upon her account, for the had no friends to care for her.

"In his extremity he confided in me, and begged that I would take care of her in his absence. I idolized my brother, he was the pride of my life; but I was furious when he told me what he had chard artfully libred dim a proud Kavanagh—into a secret and degracing marriage. But it suddenly occurred to me that something might happen to prevent the secret from ever becoming known, and I consented to look after the girl during Allan's absence. I hired some rooms in the city and kept her there for three months.

She was the daughter of a man who in America was called an 'oil king.' He made his fortune by a lucky speculation, lived a few years like a prince, then died as poor as he had begun, leaving this girl without a penny, to earn her living as best she could."

ABOUT LONDON'S SPEEDWAY. For the past few weeks local horsemen, and more especially those who own a "speeder" and a good nag to pull it, have taken the fullest advantage of the gool sleighing to test the speed at which their horses can go. In spite of the vigilance of the police many interesting brushes have taken place, and instead of utilizing the summer "workout" as a means of exercise, horsemen have taken to stepping down the avenues as a strenuous mode of testing speed. The material used is for the most part new and of fine quality, and such well-fought contests take place that recruits have been drawn to the ranks in many instances. The sport is interesting, and the report that dangerous conditions surround it is unbased. Horsemen say that the time when anyone was injured in a brush is beyond their recol-The everyday bobsleigh has done much more towards maiming over-daring children than the speeding cutter.

The increase in the number who en joy speeding has caused old horsemen to sigh for an appropriation of street upon which they might speed, and it is rumored that a petition to the effect may soon be set going. A large number of pedestrians have manifested their interest in the informal little races which have taken place, and more approval has been expressed than the opposite. Fully a score of men with steppers have added a dash of brightness to the avenues this winter.

HOCKEY.

WOODSTOCK 8, SEVENTH REGI-

MENT 3. Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 12. - Woodstock's speedy little aggregation trimmed the Seventh Regiment intermediate team in an O. H. A. game at Canterbury Rink tonight. The home team played with such vigor the visitors seemed to lose heart when the score showed up 6 to 2 at the end of the first half. It was a decidedly poor exhibition of hockey and there was no excitement. The game started at 9:15. The line up: Seventh Regiment-Goal, Leddy; point, Smith; cover, Gouthier; forwards, Lawlor, Sippi, Taylor and Woodstock-Goal, Maltman; Kelly. point, Ryder; coverpoint, Caiser; forwards, McClurg, McLettan, Pasco, Referee, C. The game, although a very good exhibition, was very one-sided, the visitors apparently being totally unable to check the repeated rushes of the home forwards. At half time the rubber had passed the Brantford goalkeeper six times and the Paris but twice. In the last half Paris scored four more, Brantford none, making the final score 10 to 2 in favor of Paris.

The method he pursues is a simple one and relieves him of all the personal worry incidental to securing players for the teams. He apportions $3,000 to each team and appoints a manager to dis-burse the sum. Each manager gets what players he pleases as long as he keeps within the $3,000 limit for the season. The hockey year opened this season on Nov. 28 and will close on March 10. As will be seen by the foregoing list of prices the general price paid is $15 a week, with $20 to the captain. It rests, however, entirely with the manager. There is a continual agitation for increases in salaries here as in other lines, only there is but little chance for raises, because of the almost

WANT TO REORGANIZE. Toronto, Jan. 9 .- A meeting of the Canadian Jockey Club is called for Friday next, Jan. 16, at 3 p.m., at the offices of the Ontario Jockey Club in this city. This club, which is endowed with authority over racing in Canada, has not been an active body since its institution, and the meeting is called for the purposes of reorganization. The original members of the Canadian Jockey Club, whose number has not been added to, while several have retired from active interest in racing, are: William Hendrie, Andrew Smith, Robert Davies, Ontario Jockey Club; J. M. Lottridge, William Hendrie, jun., Hamilton Jockey Club; J. P. Dawes, James H. Wardlow, Bell-Air Jockey Club, Montreal; John Davis, George M. Hendrie, Windsor Jockey Club; George M. Beardmore, Toronto Hunt; H. Montagu Allan, Montreal Hunt; Adam Beck, London Hunt. What steps towards an active assumption of the powers conferred on it will be taken at the meeting cannot be forecast, but it is not intended to establish a stud book or a registry other than that now existing, but the C. J. C. will probably take its position as a body having reciprocal relations with and maintaining within its jurisdiction the same authority as is exercised by angle of sometimes 20 degrees, and it's the Jockey Club in the east and the Western Jockey Club in the Western States. Racing is now in a sound condition, and strong in popular favor in Canada, and the governing body has a good field in directing operations so as CANADIANS BEATEN. Mountain Ash, Wales, Jan. 12. - The Canadians for their match today with the Welshmen here were short handed. Powers is in the hospital at Edinburgh, Scholfield is laid up at Cardiff, and Ogilvie, Tait, Marshall and Randall are away. Two Swansea men offered their services to fill the gaps and were accepted. The weather and the grounds favored the game today, but from the outset the Welshmen were looked upon as sure winners, though regarded only as of the second class. The crowd numbered about 1,500 and they witnessed a most uninteresting game. The Canadians did not seem to have improved by experience, their catching and passing, as compared to their opponents, being very poor, and at no stage of the game had they the slightest chance, the Welshmen scoring when and how they pleased. The score at the close of the match was: Mountain Ash 25, Canadians 0. A match on Wednesday next has been arranged with the Maesteg Club. On Saturday, the 31st, the team goes to Paris. McClure, interviewed by Western Daily Mail, said that the game as played in Canada at present was a sort of mongrel football.

The men had been on the mat 12 minutes in the third bout, using particularly rough methods, when the referee gave final warning that he would disqualify the man who next offended. SKATING.

A SPEED SKATER'S ADVICE. With a long, cold winter predicted, says the Toronto Globe, there is apt to be a lot of skating in this part of the country, and what Harley Davidson, one of the world's fastest skaters, has to say will be of interest.

There is an art in speed skating as well as in fancy skating, though the followers of each sport are unwilling to admit this to be true of the other. This article will treat mainly of attainment of speed on ice, and to begin with the following injunction is one that must be observed by all: "Practice all you can and breathe through your nose."

Rhythm of motion is all-important to one anxious to excel in speed skat-

The stroke must be long and regular and the body must swing along with the stroke, always maintaining perfect balance over the leg that is on the forward stroke. The speed skater's arms are usually held behind his back, except in sprint races, where he swings them with the body, adding strength and speed to the torward stroke. The rink skater has greater diffi-culties to contend with than the outdoor exponent of the sport, in that he has many turns to negotiate. Usually these turns are very short. In turning a corner at high speed the skater leans to the side he is to turn, at an an art to keep his feet, requiring great For the person who has just mastered the first principles of the game, and who desires to take to speed skating, the following will be of advan-

of the skater are called "strokes." The skater runs or glides forward ipon one leg-say the right-at first nearly in a straight line, but toward the end of this stroke he curves away toward the outer side-that is, in the case put, the right side. At the end of the stroke he thrusts his skate strongly against the ice sidewise and backwards, gripping surface with the inside edge of the blade of the skate, and thus obtains the impetus necessary for driving him along during the next stroke. Meanwhile, the outer leg has been brought back from the final thrust of the previous stroke toward and over the middle line, and has been drawn well under the body. As the stroke of the right leg is curving away from the middle line toward its finish the left skate is placed upon The skater then, throwing his weight forward, rests it upon the left leg, upon which he runs or glides in a manner similar to that described for the right leg, and so on.

During the time that the skater runs or glides upon his skate he maintains a steady balance upon it.

To do this he leans over the leg upon which he is running toward the outside, so as to bring his center of gravity immediately over his skate. When he is doing this the skate follows the direction of the body and leans over toward the ice on the same side, and the skater runs upon the outside edge of the blade. The skate can thus run straight and steady, the edge of the skate acting as a guide and preventing the skater from wobbling.

Just before the front thrust the skater ceases to balance himself or the outside edge, his skate curves outward, but his weight does not follow it, and he comes upon the flat of his skate and then finishes on the inside edge.

In racing the stroke is close to the middle line most of its length, and the curve at the finish is not sustained. To make a vigorous backward thrust with the leg, and at the same time to place the other leg on the middle ine and receive upon it, with steady balance, the weight of the body thus driven forward, and to run upon it" along this line, is a feat requiring much practice and skill. In order to assist him in accomplishing it in
