German Government to Accept
Whether or Not Reichstag Approves.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Aug. 27.—A sitting of the Reichstag was suspended temporarily today when, during debate on acceptance of the Dawes plan London agreement, the Communists caused an uproar by demanding that their expelled and imprisoned members should be allowed to vote tomorrow, according to a news agency despatch from Berlin.

There was a free-for-all fight between the Communists and the Democrats. A Communist struck a Democrat member in the face and this encounter led to a general melee and great uproar. The president, after vainly trying to restore order, finally suspended the session for a period and left the House.

WILL SIGN ANYWAY.

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, Aug. 27.—The German government will sign the London agreement whether or not the Reichstag approves of it, it was officially announced today. If the Reichstag rejects the pact on the Dawes plan, the government will sign it anyway, according to the announcement.

HERIOT EMPOWERED.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Aug. 27.—By virtue of the senate's approval last night Premier Herriot now is fully empowered to sign the London agreement, and do everything possible to put the Dawes plan into effect, as the Chamber of Deputies previously sanctioned this course by a vote of confidence Sunday morning, after an all-night session. The vote in the senate, which came after a long debate, was 250 to 40.

M. Herriot and the reparation commission now are awaiting the vote in the German Reichstag before taking further action. But in the meantime the weakening of nationalist opposition little doubt is felt here about the German acceptance and the final signature of the agreement on Saturday at London.

The Belgian cabinet has already given its ratification without bringing the matter before parliament, and there is no appreciable controversy in that country over the acceptability of the accord.

M. Herriot's big vote of more than three to two in the chamber and his even larger majority in the senate, where he expected and met with bitter opposition from nationalists, have strengthened the premier's hand and given him prestige to deal with many other problems yet to be overcome.

These include the Franco-German commercial treaty to be drafted in Paris in October, and financial matters such as the distribution of the reparation money and merchandise among the allies, and even inter-allied debts all of which are expected to be discussed at a later conference.

HERE'S WHAT THE KIDS WAITED A YEAR TO SEE!
Above an Advertiser photographer shows parts of the great circus parade which wended its way through the downtown district this morning. The street was crowded with excited groups of old and young—all young on circus day. Animals of all sorts, funny clowns, bands and pictureque riders made up the great parade. And with each wagon was a group of London's small boys in all their glory were following their favorites—what mattered a five-mile walk?

About 5 o'clock this morning he was sleeping in the car when he was found by a porter who heard him groaning and going over to his bunk saw that he was in great pain, and only semi-conscious. One man went to get a doctor and the other stayed and applied first aid, but without avail. He died five minutes after his plight was discovered.
Davison has been a member of the C. N. R. staff for 6 years.

of Recent Gas Boat Explosion.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Windsor, Aug. 27.—Although officials of the customs department here are silent it was learned from reliable sources today that a thorough probe into the liquor export business along the Essex border will be instituted shortly by the government. It is common talk along the river front that more stringent regulations are in prospect which will make the export business much less profitable than it is at present.

The probe is said to be a direct result of the recent explosion which blew up the motor launch Owl with four fatalities.

Exporters who have made fortunes in the beer trade are said to be distinctly worried over the rumors.

Prince Gets "Booby" Prize For His Costume At Dance

Appears in Ballroom of Berengaria Dressed To Represent Apache.

JOINS IN GAMES

British Heir Appears To Be Having Time of Life on Trip Over.

S.S. Berengaria, Aug. 27.—(By Wireless).—The Prince of Wales was awarded the "booby" prize for his costume at fancy dress dance held last evening. It had been stated that His Royal Highness would not appear in costume, but at a late hour he entered, made up to represent an apache.

There was repeated cheering when he and a lady dressed as a boy received the booby prize dolls. The prince wore a saucy cap and a sweater turned inside out, in simulation of one of the denizens of Limehouse, London's Chinatown.

The masque was a brilliant affair, the beautiful jewels and costumes worn by many of the women lending magnificence to the scene.

The prince appears to be enjoying the voyage thoroughly and is winning the golden opinions of the other passengers by the spirit with which he enters into the games and other amusements. For his part, he is delighted over the attitude of his fellow travellers, giving him unbounded freedom from special attention.

Wales practiced twice yesterday with his tug-of-war team, which is to compete with a team composed of Americans. The latter outweigh the prince's team, but have offered to adjust weights so as to equalize things.

The prince rises at 7:30 a.m., boxes, exercises and promenades the deck vigorously. He has a cheery greeting for the newspaper correspondents who seek him out, and altogether appears happy and carefree. Occasionally he has a private card party in his own suite, but he is generally out revelling in the fresh air and sunshine.

Morrison Suggests Industrial Peace League, Amos Says
No Politics.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Aug. 27.—Leaders in all branches of Ontario industry assembled at Queen's Park this morning at the request of the special agricultural investigation committee of the legislature to endeavor, through the medium of a mutual exchange of ideas, to improve conditions in the agricultural industry. There was a large gathering of representatives of every walk of life, farmers, bankers, brokers, transportation men and representatives of the boards of trade and other bodies. Hon. Dr. Jamieson, chairman of the committee, expressed the opinion that the interest taken by the various leaders of industry in Ontario indicated that the spirit of co-operation was necessary for the good of the province. He briefly outlined the functions of the committee and urged a full and frank discussion of the problem before them.

Advices Industrial League.
J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U. F. O., expressed the opinion that an industrial peace league was required. He pointed out that the lack of co-operative effort had brought about a sad condition of affairs. In his opinion labor organizations controlled production and sought higher wages and shorter hours. They also held in reserve large funds for strike purposes, which created an unfriendly situation. He believed that the country had come to an extravagant standard of living that it was impossible for industry to support.

Devoy Claims.

Associated Press Despatch.
Dublin, Aug. 27.—John Devoy, editor of the Gaelic American, of New York, who was the guest of the Irish Free State government during the day, said today that the best solution of the Irish boundary question was a despatch today reporting an outbreak of warfare between the forces of Chi Shieh-Yuan, military governor of Kiangsu Province, and General Lu Yung-Hsiang, Tsuchan of Shiekang Province.

The outbreak occurred at Quinsai near here, on the line of the Shanghai-Nanking railway. Numerous refugees are pouring into Shanghai from Sunksian and other border cities.

MERCURY JUMPS UP TO NINETY DEGREES

Today Is Second Hottest in Year—Record Is 92.

FELT IN CITY

Cooling Showers Are Promised, and 92 Appears Year's Record.

Related summer is here with a vengeance. August is not going to depart without leaving a taste of the real old summer time for stifling mortals to grumble over.

This is the second hottest day of the year. It is just 90 in the shade; not such a high temperature for the amount of heat. It is the old humidity again.

The barometer is low. The heat is hot, sticky and oppressive. Clouds do not seem to ward off the heat. The humidity has settled over London for today at least.

There is a promise of cooling showers before tomorrow; in the meantime the weather man says that it is not so bad as it seems. On June 20 it was 92 in the shade. That was the hottest day of the year.

With only a few more days of August it seems highly probable that 92 will stand on record as London's hottest day for 1924, unless September has a surprise in store.

The weatherman is in a quandary. One day it rains and all the instruments he had said "fair." Then it is fair on the day it wasn't meant to be. The only information he feels like handing out as reliable is when it registers "cooler."

Yesterday the sky was full of stars and suns, and the poor chap was kept busy answering the questions of inquisitive citizens. Then he hopped into his chair this morning, and it should have been "hot," but none came. Then a little shower early in the afternoon raised his hopes, but as soon as he began to smile it quit. Wrong again! The weatherman is waiting for winter.
