were carried out and the championship for the year decided upon. The students entered heartily into the various contests and emphasized the feeling of unity existing among them, as pupils of the Watford High School.

For the second day, a goodly number of boys and girls from Strathroy Collegiate Institute, and a baseball team from Forest, came for the events. The sports were not much interfered with by the damp weather and were entered into with a spirit of friendly competition and good feeling.
The day was brought to a suitable conclusion by a banquet in the Armory at which the Watford students entertained the visitors. JUNIOR GIRLS.

Material Also Popular for the Small Girl.

Enters Largely Into Construction of Best Frocks as Well as Garments for School Wear.

Everyone wears velvet this winter. This means that the small girl is either entirely or partially velvet-robed during the majority of her wide-awake hours. Velvet is not used to develop evening frocks for the very young, but it enters very largely into the construction of many best or "Sunday" frocks, as well as into the garment designed for school wear. The dress made entirely of velvet is usuvery picturesque and distinguished, with white collar and cuffs, and often a wide sash of satin in self or contrasting color. For school or service wear a velvet skirt may be accompanied by a blouse of crepe de chine or satin, or a sleeveless velveteen blouse may be worn over a plain or plaid frock of serviceable wool mate-

The sketch shows a smart little frock for a girl of six or eight years, combining a one-piece dress of plaid serge in red and black with a square cut, hip-length coat of black velvet or velveteen, finished at the neck with ruffle of white organide or georgette. The sleeves of the jacket are cut short enough to show a few inches of the plaid sleeve.

The cap to be worn with this outfit may match either dress proper or jacket, or a combination of the two materials may be employed.

A great deal of attention is being paid to clothes for children this winter, and it is interesting to observe the exactness with which the wardrobe of the well-dressed grown-up is copied in miniature for the child.

for girls as young as four years are shown, to be worn under little party frocks of net and other sheer fabrics. Hand-embroidered silk pajamas and silk nightgowns are also developed for these very little people. This scheme of dressing has its advantages, too. It is a real education in the art of being well dressed, started at the right time
