

LINDSAY & BLAKISTON'S PUBLICATIONS.

A Truly Beautiful Book.

The Birds of the Bible.

AN ELEGANT PRESENTATION VOLUME, by the REV. H. HARBAUGH,
Author of the "Heavenly Recognition of Friends," the "Heavenly Home," &c.
Imperial Octavo, elegantly ILLUSTRATED by Twelve Designs, done in Colours.

This Work is altogether Original, and by a Popular Author. The Illustrations are entirely New, and executed in a style superior to anything of the kind heretofore attempted in this country. The Letter-press is printed on a delicately-tinted cream-coloured Paper. The Binding is done with great care, and in a superior manner; and no expense has been spared in order to make it, artistically and otherwise, the LEADING PRESENTATION VOLUME OF THE SEASON.

Elegantly bound in Turkey Morocco, Antique,	-	-	-	£7 00
" " Bevelled Cloth, full gilt,	-	-	-	5 00
" " Cloth, gilt back,	-	-	-	4 00

This is a book on which the eye reposes with genuine pleasure. In all parts of its mechanical execution it is sumptuously prepared, and highly creditable to the taste which planned and superintended its publication. Our readers are not to expect in it a scientific treatise on Bible ornithology, with the usual technical descriptions, but a series of beautifully-written sketches suggested by the mention of various birds, incidentally referred to in the sacred Scriptures. Mr. Harbaugh's talents as an agreeable and devotional writer, have been tested and approved in the former productions of his pen. His publishers have most liberally aided him in making this work acceptable, by the accompaniments of a rich and luxurious typography, and coloured engravings of various birds, which are beautifully characteristic and artistical.—Presbyterian.

This volume will rank among the most perfect specimens of illustrated typography and of binding which has issued from the American press. In a literary point of view we think it stands foremost among Mr. Harbaugh's works. There is a mingled vein of piety and poetry running through the whole of it that brings it closely home to the heart as well as the taste.—Episcopal Recorder.

This is truly an elegant book. The paper, typography, and illustrations, are all of the best quality; and the contents are in admirable keeping with the externals of the book. Rarely indeed is so much of the useful and instructive found combined with so much that is attractive and beautiful.—Traveller.

The conception of this book is, we believe, as original as it is beautiful. The various birds mentioned in Scripture are accurately described, and each is presented, not only as a witness to the divine wisdom and goodness, but as a preacher of the most important truths. The work is suited, not less to enlarge one's knowledge of the kingdom of nature, than to increase one's admiration and reverence for the Lord of the creation. The spirit is eminently devotional, and the religious teachings not only in harmony with the sacred record, but most happily illustrative of it.—Puritan Recorder.

There seems to have been a successful effort on the part of the author, artist, and publishers, to produce a book at once beautiful in its subjects and in its language; artistic in its numerous illustrations, and almost faultless in its typography and binding.—Pres. of the West.