Sunday-Schools of M. E. Church.—The numerical statistical summaries presented in the Quadrennial Report of the corresponding secretary are as follows:

Number of Sunday-schools, 24,225.

Number of officers and teachers, 268,391.

Number of Sunday-school scholars, 2,006,328. These show a net increase during the quadrennium of 2,272 Sunday-schools, 38,826 officers and teachers, and 312,708 Sunday-school scholars.

The conversions in the Sundays during the four years reach a total of 410,224. This is an increase over the number reported during the preceding quadrennium of 112,421.

University Missions.—The last report of the Cambridge University Church Missionary Union gives a list of 172 Cambridge graduates who have gone out as missionaries, to the end of 1887. Of these, 111 went for C.M.S.; 48 as chaplains, or for S.P.G., or for the Delhi Mission (this includes Henry Martyn and other East India chaplains, but the list is incomplete); five for the Universities' Mission to Central Africa; five for the China Inland Mission; three for the London Missionary Society. In the C.M.S. list it stands for the year 1887; only one other year (1886) had as many as six. Even taking all societies together, no year came up to the C.M.S. 1887 list alone. The best was 1885, when the five China Inland men went, with five C.M.S. and two S.P.G. Eleven on the C.M.S. list were Ridley Hall men. The report expresses the hope that the increase last year "is but the earnest of a still larger increase, and that the number may never fall again to its former low standard."
