REVIEW NOTICES:

"Dr. Farrar's style is too well known to call for comment. These sermons are in his best vein, and upon a subject of primary interest to all—the Ten Commandments. If at any time Dr. Farrar is the son of thunder, it is when he is preaching on moral questions. These sermons excited widespread interest among young men and the laboring classes in London at the time of their delivery, and we wish they might on this side of the water also."—The Christian Union.

"At the time of their deliverance, even the transcripts of the Abbey were crowded with young men who stood for hours listening eagerly to the simple yet eloquent words, and letters were received from all sections bearing powerful evidence of the influence of their truths."—Baltimore American.
