

FOREWORD

Canadian products and services for the mining industry are recognized in international markets as leader in terms of advanced technology, efficiency, and quality.

The trust for improved productivity in mining operations has pushed innovative Canadian companies to the forefront of industry. Canadian earth sciences and mining equipment companies have extensive experience in most mining regions of the world. Every day, new technologies are developed and tested in Canada by world renowned engineers.

Canadian experts work in all aspects of mining and mineral processing from basic geoscience research through to exploration and production. They provide equipment, maintenance services, training, management and all other support necessary for efficient and profitable operations.