

CHAPTER IV.

THREE YEARS' LABORS.

Study of the Indian languages, p. 41.—“The Louvre,” 42.—Malady among the “Seminarists,” 44.—Nuns from Paris, 46.—What they write of the Convent, 47.—Difficulties, 50.—Foundation-stone of the Monastery laid, 52.

CHAPTER V.

MADAME DE LA PELTRIE AND THE INDIANS.

The foundress boards with the Nuns, p. 54.—A procession, 55.—The Indian Council, 56.—An excursion to Sillery, 59.—Midnight Mass at the Indian Chapel, 62.

CHAPTER VI.

EFFECTS OF INSTRUCTION.

The Indian girls at home, p. 61.—In the Convent, 65.—Preparing for first Communion, 68.—Their gratitude, 70.—Teresa the Huron, 71.—The Seminarists among their own people, 75.

CHAPTER VII.

EIGHT YEARS IN THE NEW MONASTERY.

Progress of Christianity, p. 78.—The Monastery in readiness, 79.—The Nuns take possession, the first Mass, 82.—Seminarists and Indian women, 86.—Parlor visitors, 87.—Labors of seven Nuns, 90.—Mother Mary's spirit, 91.—Madame de la Peltrie aids in the Convent, 93.—Other laborers arrive, 95.—Mother St. Athanasius Superior, 96.—Miss de Boulogne, 97.

The reports neophy country 107.

An e—Were The rui Indian

Invita tion of t colonist —Illnes message

The N The nur of the t Lodging! dame de the Inca