England vs. United States

To-Day's International Match

-A-

Friendly Rivalry

At Hampstead, L.I., this afternoon, four representative Englishmen will try conclusions with four representative Americans on the polo field. In the matter of style the Englishmen are probably superior, but the ponies of the Americans seem to be made of sterner stuff and this may decide the day.

In other spheres of interest—and notably that of clothes—these characteristics are reversed; it's generally the English that supply the "stuff" and the Americans the "style." But instead of being rivals, these two Anglo-Saxon nations co-operate in the matter of men's clothes so that you may buy here the best English materials, made up in the perfect fitting American styles. Come in to-morrow and you'll see just what we mean, by examining this 2-piece suit of flannel-finished English tweed, tropical weight, on sale to-morrow at ten-fifty.

Opening of the Summer White Sale

An event of the first importance to the women of Toronto takes place to-morrow when our Summer Sale of white is inaugurated. For years this sale has been like a veritable treasure-ship entering the port of Toronto with the first day of June and distributing its snow-white cargo among the thousands of Toronto women who eagerly await its arrival.

We have tidings that the cargoes of previous years will be far surpassed by this one, and we publish here the first news of it—the most conspicuous items on its inventory.

Isn't it worth while coming to meet such values? If you want to be among the first, eight a.m. is the hour to-morrow, third floor, Richmond Street.
