The marriage came off on Thursday of last week at the Church of Corpus Christi, Brixton Hill. She believes that as a citizen, woman should have the same individual liberty as man, and that the ballot is but her right. Mrs. Weekes read a number of the usual objections raised to women voting. These objections were very satisfactorily answered by Mesdames Thornley, Ashplant, Heraid, Rea, Johnson and Miss McEvoy. After a full discussion the meeting declared itself unanimously in favor of woman suffrage. WELL PLEASED

London's Deputation Favorably Received by the Ontario Government-Col. Leys Active

The civic deputation returned from Toronto this morning, well pleased with their reception by the members of the legislature. The city was represented by the mayor, Ald. Parnell, Graham and Winnett, and Assessment Commissioner Grant. The party left London yesterday at 10:25 a.m., and got back at 3:15 o'clock this morning. Apparently no time was lost. The members of the deputation were entertained at the Iroquois, through the courtesy of Col. Leys, M.P.P., who accompanied them at the interview with the cabinet. The outcome of the interview will be known when the revenue bill comes up for its third reading in the house.

WILL IT BE A WHITE EASTER?

Present indications point that way. Climatic Conditions is certainly doing the best possible to have it so on the outside, while Gammage & Sons, the well-known florists, are sparing no effort to have the interior of every church and home in London white with the purity and fragrance of the glorious Easter Lily. Their supply of these attractive and beautiful flowers, this year, is superior to anything ever shown here before, and the demand is un-precedented. Don't fail to yet your Easter Lily, and get it today. There is also a grand stock of other flowering and decorative plants, and loads of cut flowers. Early orders are always appreciated and bring satisfaction.

TRIP TO MEXICO

Has a Very Poor Opinion of the Mexicans Generally.

Spend Their Time Drinking, Gambling and Betting.

Realistic Description of the Bull Fight -The Doctor Thinks There Is no Place Like Canada.

Dr. James D. Wilson, of this city, who left for Mexico some three weeks ago, has arrived there, and writes the following letter from Mapimi, Mexico, to Chief Ranger Hardingham and the members of Court Pride of the Dominion, Ancient Order of Foresters, city:

"Dear Brothers,-I thought I would write a few lines descriptive to a small Pursuing the Filipinos extent of my trip to Mexico, thinking it might be of some interest. I went a few minutes to wait. I then took the train for Kansas City, where I was delayed half a day. To put in the time I went through the city, but was not favorably impressed, as it is very dirty and smoky, and the situation is bad, being mostly built on the side and top of a mountain, though out a dis-tance they say there are some very beautiful residences. While there I heard of the trial going on at the court house of Jesse James, son of the no- organization bill, has not been men-torious Jesse James that we read tioned to the president, either by Actabout as boys. He and three others They blew up the safe, but got very little for their trouble. The proof was perfect, but they were let go, as a great many I spoke to said that the police, state attorney, etc., were all in the gang. In the afternoon I left Kansas City, and in two days reached El Paso, a bright place, but made up principally of saloons and gambling places. After waiting half a day I crossed the Rio Grande River into Mexico, and was there saluted with hundreds of Mexican beggars, half-dressed, as the train stopped at the station to examine our baggage. They are a dirty, treacherous people, below our native Indian in either intelligence or cleanliness, that is, the Peons, who are by far the greater in number. They partment, occupied the chair. Miss all carry a knife, and are always ready to use it, though they are terribly frightened at a gun, and all foreigners do not forget to carry one. "On the way from El Paso to Mapimi -a journey of two days-you see nothing but a desolate country, with no vegetation—as they have no rain the greatest part of the year-only scattered over with cactus plant, and a few small bushes, and occasionally a small hut, and often half a dozen Mexicans on their horses, riding rapidly over the country. As you get near Mapimi the country is very mountainous, and here is where the great Mexican gold, silver and copper mines are.

"I am relieving Dr. Fraser, late of London, who is away for a few days, and I visit the mines every day or so. On the top and sides of the mountain are huddled together over two thousand Mexicans and about thirty whites, and the filth and disease is beyond description. Accidents are numerous, as they do not hesitate to stab each other. Just behind what I use as an office, the other day a man nearly cut another in two with a knife, though the law is strict, as the man was caught, and taken out and shot forth-

"Mapimi is a place of 15,000 Mexicans and a few Americans, who possibly can't go back. You can imagine what the town is like from my description of a Mexican. The houses are low and flat, made of mud, baked, something like our brick, in the sun, and whole families live in one room. The streets are fairly straight, and a little park, very crude, in the center, with flowers and a monument of a kind, representing the date of the town -300 years. Opposite the park is a fairly good-sized Catholic Church. The people are almost entirely of that religion. The town is about half made up of saloons, where they drink a preparation which tastes like brandy, made from the cactus plant, and they will not work more than two weeks, when they must get drunk for a few days. Their ambition consists mostly of getting drunk, gambling and having bull and cock fights. There are probably over a hundred cockfights in the town in one day, and they gamble on the result. They also have a bullfight every two weeks. I went to one bullfight through curiosity, and that was quite enough. Part of it was terribly cruel, and the latter was heathenish and cruel, yet very funny. They have a large ring surrounded with a high wall, and sell seats, so much in the shade, and so much in the sun, as they put it. I preferred the shade, band came in playing as the performance was about to begin, following four prettily dressed Mexican girls, called the queens. Then four men on horseback, with the horses blindfolded, came in through a door on one side, having spears and a red shawl, or zerapy, as they call it. From the opposite side came a lively bull with a small dart in his back, looking for trouble. He sees the red shawl, and makes for it, and it off with the spear, as he rushes from one to the other. At one time I thought one man was killed, as man, bull and terribly injured. After a time they get young men come in with their zerapy, was very warm. A very inferior is wonderful how well they keep him horse were in a heap, with the horse the horses out, and about a dozen to tease the bull by shaking it at him, and as it rushes at them they jump to one side, and another takes the bull's attention, and as the bull rushes at the cloak he steps to one side, and throws furious than ever. They end it by killing the bull as he rushes at one holding the zerapy in one hand and a long knife in the other, steps to one side and kills it with one stroke. This is followed with wild cheering. Two men were badly hurt. Four bulls make up the entire performance. All that was cruel and barbarous, and so was the last, still it was very funny. They put a string of coins about the neck of a fresh bull and let him into the ring. Then about a hundred Peons or low grade of Mexicans go into the ring, each dodging the bull and trying to get the coins. At one time you would see a Peon 20 feet in the air, and another go tumbling over to get away from the bull. All the time the animal is dashing from one to the other. They think no more of the life of a Peonthan we do of a dog. I left the place denly, but I had only a few hours to get ready if I went. "Give my best wishes to all the bro feeling there was no country like Can-
