Note and Comment

while automobiles are destined to drive horse cut of existence sooner or later, going is being delayed somewhat, acding to the latest reports from the kers of motor cars, merican manufacturers have been free past years to admit their indebtedness Europe for its share in the developt of the motor car. Matters of design, ever, are not the only ones from which might draw lessons. In Europe the es of a number of companies are liston exchanges and by reason of that their annual reports are made public. Orts from several companies whose k is listed show in a clear cut and conclusive way what over-production done across the Atlantic. A resume the financial reports of seven European anies given in The Financial Times ondon is comprehensive in that the thies included in it manufacture careficies of many kinds and do not across the fifth of the so-called pleanars alone.

The reports show that in the amount of net profits the seven companies showed a loss of $29160 for the season of 1908-9 from the season of 1908-9 from the season of 1908-8. In the amount carried forward the season of 1907-8 shows an excess over 1908-0 of $57,415. The story of the dividends is also an interesting one and should tend to show that the stories of vast profits in the motor car industry are not very well founded. In 1907-8 the seven companies paid an average of 7.5 per cent. to the stockholders, but that the production served as even a greater blight than money stringency, the dividends for 1908-9, when these same companies paid an average of only 4.28 per cent., show in a conclusive manner.

There is a naticeable slackening off in the demand for public utility and trade vehicles, such as motor buses, motor cabs and motor wagons and lorries. Although the motor, the pace at which the alteration is being warried out is not quite so fast now as it was, and after the first demands were satisfied there came the inevitable reduction in the number of tresh orders, while profits had been reduced owing to the greatly increased competition. It is not surprising, therefore, that the majority of the companies with duced owing to the greatly increased com-petition. It is not surprising, therefore, that the majority of the companies with which we are able to deal to-day exhibit declines in their net earnings, even against the poor figures of 1907-8, and perhaps the most surprising thing is that three of the seven have managed to improve their con-dition.

Speaking of boxing it is not surprising to find many kind words being said for the English brain initiated by Lord Lonsdale, for the reorganization of the classes, and the placing of championships on a firm footing. Under the proposed system no champion can ignore a challenge, properly accompanied by forfeit, but must defend his title within a reasonable time, fixed in the articles, or forfeit his title. This is as it, should be, and we will no longer be controlled by the sight of stage-struck champions hanging on to their titles indefinitely, witsbeut defending them against bona fide challengers. For instance, there is a host of good lightweights anxious to box Battling Nelson for the championship, yet the Battler is stalling them off as he, likes, and only the dearth of stage work has forced him back into the ring.

making them really what they purport to be. For instance, if a man is champion of England, he holds a belt symbolic of the honors, and po foreigner can take title upon the corresponding to the really way from him. Jack O'Brien went to England and won 'the English championship,' yet he could never really be champion of England, living in American titles, and the linest the could be rigidly enforced as will be those surrounding the world's championships.
