HOME BAKING SOLUTION

Causing Return to Normal Saneness.

From reports of the meeting of the civic board of enquiry into the high cost of bread it would seem that the factors of sugar and shortening assumed somewhat larger proportions in the minds of the members when conorbitant rates orbitant rates.

According to one press report "greater simplicity and less fastidious tastes" were the remedies suggested, the greater simplicity to be attained by the elimination of sugar and shortening and a return to the oid-fashioned crusty loaves baked in brick ovens. The latter suggestion would less prove effectual to a great exten in bringing things back to norma saneness of price to the consumer, but sugar and shortening, so far as the financial outlay is concerned, play but a very slight part in explaining why the consumer has to pay almost twice what bread actually costs the pro-ducer as far as the ingredients it contains are concerned.

In a previous article published The World it was shown that in the making of 131 loaves—the number which may be had from the 98-pound bag of flour—the lard used cost only 39.2c and the sugar 12.78c, the two toge ther amounting to about 52 cents, or less than half a cent a loaf. It is quite evident then that the elimination of these two ingredients is not the solution to the problem which is of such vital interest at the present

The figures quoted in the first ar ticle were from the standpoint of the home baker, that is, they did not take into account the labor of the baker, the cost of the wear and tear of machinery in a bake shop and the cost of delivery. These, of course, would have brought the total cost up considerably. The figures, however, were those from an actual test and included all the outlay that would be entailed by the housekeeper in her home, and the final analysis showed that bread made at home saves the ousekeeper about fifty per cent. of her present outlay.

Another point in favor of homemade bread is that it keeps longer than that which comes from the factory, and if the habit of introducing the old industry back into the home were established, once or twice a week would be sufficient for "baking day." The present time too, would be very opportune, as stoves for more extensive cooking than during the summer The acceptance of the offer of the expert bread maker" to give his services to the city for nothing in order to establish a plant would scarcely show wherein lies the present injus-tice. No one is complaining of the baker and his assistants being paid a just remuneration. To get someone to do their work for nothing, even for short time, would scarcely be a solution, except in as far as it might help in establishing a plant which would in some measure take the place of a municipal bakery. The question at issue is wherein lie the factors which call for an additional of fifty per cent. above the outlay cost of the ingredients, together with

he gas used in the production of the bread? From the baker's standpoint, an advertisement in The World would imply that the high cost of flour is to blame Chicago Market Closes Over for present difficulties. Admitting this, then there must be a dreadful outlay other than this cost, together with that of the additional articles used in making up the bread. The advertisement referred to is that of the Lawrence home-made bread, in which the head of the firm says: "I will reduce the price of bread when the price of flour goes down enough to make it possible." This promise is a Argentine Crops Still Suffer step in the right direction. To right themselves the bakers should move for reduction in the price of flour. Latest reports show that Canada his year will have 100,000,000 bushels CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Increasing of wheat for exportation. With such a surplus there does not seem to be anxiety for supplies, especially on the any need for the price of flour being part of Europeans. gave a fresh up. part of Europeans, gave a fresh up-

Hay, No. 1, per ton...$11 0c to $12.00 last night, the Germans evidently have ing selected Saturdays for their greatest efforts. But a bright moon deterred any attempt since three weeks ago, when 13 raiders came over the sea The change from the unlucky 13 to 12 last night brought, however, worse, rather than better luck to the flying squadron. From the moment the first zeppelin appeared it was evident that the raiders were of the new and larger types. This has been borne out by the two brought down. One of the burning zeppelins, in falling, crashed thru a row of trees in Essex, two of which pierced the lattice work of the envelope supports. As usual the village fire engine was quickly on the scene and began putting water on the blazing wreck. Police constables and volunteers removed the bodies as rapidly as possible. Some of these were charred beyond all recognition while others were still white and recognizable. All appeared to be young men. well clad and wearing the remains of stout leather coats and shoes of rather poor quality, which is taken here to indicate that good footwear is not plentiful in Germany. Today thousands journeyed to Essex to view the wreck, but quick precautions prevented souvenir hunters from making away with everything detachable. There were many sightseers also viewing the damaged outskirts of the Official Statement. An official statement issued by the British Press Bureau tonight says:

"Latest reports show that probably not more than 12 airships participated in last night's air raid. Police reports from the provinces indicate that the damage by the airships is slight. In one town in the east Midlands, however, a number of bombs were dropped and it is regretted that two persons were killed and 11 injured. It is feared that two more bodies were buried under some ruins in this town. Some damage was caused at a railway station and about a dozen houses and shops were wrecked or damaged and a chapel and storehouse set og fire. This is an exception. No other casualties have been reported outside the metropolitan area and altho large number of bombs were dropped promiscuously over the districts visited by the afrships, the material damage is insignificant. A great number of bombs fell in the sea or in open "In the metropolitan area 17 men eight women and three children were killed, and 45 men, 37 women and 17 children were injured. "A considerable number of small dwelling houses and shops were demolished or damaged. A number of fires were caused. Two factories sugtained injury. Some empty railway trucks were destroyed and a permanent way slightly damaged in two places. "No reports have been received of any military damage." The Official Statement. The official statement announcing the zeppelin attack on London said: "12.15 p.m.-Fourteen or fifteen airships participated in the attack on Great Britain last night. The southeastern, eastern an deast midland counties and Lincolnshire were the principal locations visited.

"An attack on London was carried out by two airships from the southeast between 1 and 2 a.m. and by one airship from the east between 12 and 1 a.m. Aeroplanes were sent up and fire was opened from anti-aircraft guns and defences, the raiders being
