LAKE ERIE ARRIVES

One of Her Passengers Died on the Voyage and Was Buried at Sea.

The C. P. R. steamship Lake Erie, Captain Gargy, arrived in port yesterday about one o'clock, and docked at No. 3 berth, west side. The steamer brought 12 saloon, 20 second cabin, and 217 steerage passengers. The Lake Erie made the passage in twelve days. The voyage was a very boisterous one, and heavy gales and high seas were encountered most all the way out.

A death, and the sad spectacle of a burial at sea, took place last week. The body of Mrs. C. Brooks, who had died on the passage, was consigned to the deep. The dead woman's daughter was on the ship with her. They were going to visit a brother and son in the west. Miss Lily Brooks, the daughter, had the sympathy of all the passengers.

The immigrants, who landed at Sand Point yesterday afternoon, were a fine looking lot of people, made up of English and Scandinavians. None of those en route to Canada were detained by the immigration officers, and only two of those bound for the states. Three relatives of the latter decided to remain until they are released.

The government officials say that the Erie passengers are a splendid lot of men and women.

Captain Gargy, who has been running here for some years, is commander of the big ship, and his many friends here are giving him the glad hand.

The officers of the Lake Erie are: H. C. Parrells, first officer; R. Wren, second officer; P. Kelly, third officer; W. Sampson, chief engineer; G. D. Fishwick, purser; Dr. A. H. McIntosh, surgeon; J. O. Jones, chief steward.

CAMP IS SENT UP FOR TRIAL

And Bail to the Amount of $8,000 is Accepted for Him

Saturday afternoon Howard D. Camp was committed for trial in connection with the death of the late Edith Floyd Clark. Judge Ritchie admitted him to bail in the sum of $8,000. Half of this is on the defendant's own recognizance, the other half being sureties of $2,000 each. The bondsmen are George W. Fleming, of the Phoenix foundry, in which establishment the accused was employed, and Frank L. Peters, of C. H. Peters Sons.

In the afternoon the evidence of Misses Muir and Maxwell was taken, after which Dr. A. W. Macrae delivered his address. Dr. Macrae in his opening remarks stated that no evidence had been adduced which was of sufficient import to justify the court in sending the defendant up for trial on the charge of manslaughter.

In considering all the evidence he said: "We know that the defendant kept company with the deceased, and that on the evening of Nov. 13th he delivered a small package to her at her home. That package contained medicine. The medicine was fluid extract of ergot, and ergot is used for checking hemorrhage. Could not we medical men have brought her just for this purpose?"

There is no evidence that deceased took any of the medicine or any other preparation provided by the defendant, Howard Camp. There is no evidence that she was asked to take any medicine and there is no evidence to connect the defendant through the alleged dying statements, with the deceased.

Later on in his argument Dr. Macrae said: "What additional evidence is there?"

The deceased, when married, said to the nurse that the doctors might have spared her. Had they asked Howard he would have told them everything. Told that all about what? Simply that he knew her condition and knew the doctor. Is that any reason why he should be committed for trial?"

There is no evidence whatever that the deceased came to her death through medicine or by the use of an instrument provided by, or at the suggestion of the defendant. There is no evidence that anything that might have caused the death of Miss Clark was through the defendant as the motive agent.

Further, Dr. Macrae said: "Can it be conceived that because a messenger brought a bottle of medicine to a sick friend, because the friend died, because the messenger was mentioned as a person able to tell the doctors all about the trouble, because the messenger was mentioned as the one who brought the evidence as to the defendant should be committed for trial?"

Dr. Macrae said: "The evidence shows that the defendant knew all about the illness of the deceased and in he is as guilty as Dr. Peters."

THE LOVE OF MONEY

Rev. David Lang's Strong Sermon in St. Andrew's Church.

Rev. David Lang delivered an eloquent discourse in St. Andrew's church last evening, on the vice of gambling and the love of money. The sermon was one of a series on the seven deadly sins of society, and was based on the text, "The love of money is the root of all evil."

Timothy vi-10.

The speaker pointed out that the sin of avarice is peculiar to the present day because there are opportunities of making money in almost every line of business.

Money is both power and liberty. It is held up as an ideal to every young man. After calling attention to several scriptural examples to illustrate the depths of crime to which cupidity draws mankind, the reverend gentleman pointed out that money is the main cause of its temperance today.

He next took up the sin of gambling, which, he said, was not regarded by many as a high society, but that there are men in prison for playing games of chance and skill for greed of gold. The man, he said, who gambles for love of excitement will, in the end, find himself capable of any crime.

In conclusion, the preacher said that the only way to displace the love of money in the mind is to have ideals so lofty that money is of no account. The world needs men today who have such ideals; ideals they will soon be barred for the love of gold or for the love of money.

There are some things, he said, money cannot buy and these things are the only ones that make life worth living. Christ lives at last, two strong arguments, who a man should not lay up for himself treasures on earth. One is the uncertainty of riches and the other that no one can serve two masters. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon," and if a man would know life and duty he must divorce himself from the love of money.

OLD PRINTER DEAD

John Vincent, a famous Boston printer and the oldest member of the Globe composing room force, died suddenly last Tuesday at Boston. He was born at Halifax, N. S., September 24, 1830. He received a good education, and when young he learned the printing trade, and for many years he was a stirring contributor to the Boston press.

In 1859 he represented the Boston union at the International Typographical Union Convention in Philadelphia.

In 1879 he proposed the formation of the Central Union Council, which is the first president and was prominent in it for some years after.

He came to the Globe in 1879, where he has since been employed. In 1883 he founded the Globe Relief Association, which is in existence today, and whose record for charity is unparalleled among the printing fraternity of the country.

POLICE COURT

In the police court this morning two drunks were fined $8 each, and one forfeited a deposit of $8.

James Lawlor, who, as stated in Saturday's Times, was arrested on a commitment, had his name on the police sheet this morning. The magistrate stated that such money spent by individual philanthropists in providing Christmas dinners for the poor was put in one fund it could be expended to much better advantage.

Manager Skinner has secured for the holidays the Waite Comedy Company, an organization numbering twenty-five people, carrying their own band and orchestra and a number of elite vaudeville features and a repertoire of plays of excellence. The cast of the company contains a host of well-known theatre folk familiar to the amusement seekers of St. John. Mr. Waite is no stranger, having appeared here last season in a comedy entitled "Other People's Money."

Other People's Money, Miss Virginia Dorrer, a talented and handsome leading woman was also seen in the same organization; Walter Woodhull, formerly of the Hartman and the Valentine stock companies, is also included in the cast; Edythe Marion Bryan, Frederick Hustable, Montgomery Holland and Percy Lyell, were here last with the Fiske Stock Co. Two performances will be given on Christmas day. At the matinee a comedy drama, entitled "Home, Sweet Home," is announced and in the evening "The Gates of Hell" will be presented. Mr. Waite will personally appear in both productions on Christmas day.

WAS HE "NEXT"?

Peculiar Significance of a Hymn Given out in One of the City Churches Last Night.

There was an amusing incident in one of the city churches last evening which caused considerable merriment for the few who knew of it. In the church in question the sexton had been particularly attentive to his duties with the result that the evening service the church building was delightfully warm and cozy. In fact so comfortable that when the members of the congregation had settled themselves snugly in their pews to listen to the sermon the temptation to doze was very strong. So strong was it, that after struggling bravely in opposition during the greater part of the sermon two worthy members of the congregation succumbed and after a few preliminary nods and starts, their heads rested wearily upon their breasts and they were in the land of nod.

In a clear, resonant tone from the pulpit came these words: "There is an eye which never sleeps."

And then the sleepers wondered if their pastor was "talking them."
