FREDERICTON, N. B., AUG 6, 1892.

A BARBARIAN.

It appears that the volunteer trooper Iams, under the command of Colonel Streator at the late Homestead troubles, is about bringing an action against his Colonel for having ordered the young man to be tied up by the thumbs and have his head shaved for having foolishly raised a cry on the side of the rioters, which in itself amounted to nothing, deserving no more than a reprimand—he was a mere boy of 17 and full of enthusiasm. We read of such barbarities happening in Russia, but in the great and free United States of America to treat a soldier, a citizen soldier at that, never. But what could have put such a devilish notion in the head of a christian soldier is as much a puzzle as that such a refined monster of cruelty should exist in North America even in time of war when the exaction of discipline in the army, however severe, no such cruelty as that just perpetrated would be regarded lightly by the public. If the law of reprisals according to the old Indian customs prevailed at the present day, this man called a "colonel" should not only be tied up in the same way, but have fifty lashes laid upon his bare back, and then have the expanlets torn from his shoulders and drummed out of the army which he has so disgraced. The father of the young man also brings a suit against the commander—so that between the two it is hoped that Colonel Streator will receive his deserts.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

Parliament was opened (pro forma) on Thursday last and will meet for the despatch of business which will mean this time for the "despatch" of the present government and the substitution of a new one. Some people appear to be in great perplexity lest the grand old man will be tripped up on the threshold by the wire pullers, and have no chance to form a Ministry but Salisbury and Balfour know a thing or two and are not going to surrender office without hard kicking. They have the sympathy of the Queen who never was overfriendly to Gladstone. This is all chaff. The Queen has too much good sense, at the end of her days to interfere as George and William the fourth frequently did, with the arrangements of a Ministry, having the confidence of the House of Commons; no matter what her disposition or wishes. She knows when to give way as in the case of the assumption of office by Sir Robert Peel some 38 years ago, when the new Premier insisted upon the dismissal of a lady of the bedchamber and who Her Majesty wished to retain. She had either to part with the lady or her Minister, and there is no knowing what might have happened if the advice was disregarded. However, few persons believe that the Queen has any prejudices to gratify in the present instance. These stories are only Tory devices. Then again Mr. Gladstone's materials he has to work with are not only incongruous out incohesive, made up it is said of Parnellites, McCarthyites, Taborites and extreme Radicals. Therefore he will only be kept in office by a rope of sand. Not so fast. The Malcontents of his party—should such show themselves at any time—know full well that it is not an easy thing to overturn a majority of 40. It would require 20 of a combination of offshoots to upset the government, and upon what known or supposed ground could they act? What then? If it were possible to turn out the government what would be the chances of re-election in case of being sent back to their constituents? There will be no split, though there may be some pouting. But once the "Home Rule" question is out of the way—blocked if you like in the House of Lords for the time being—where then after that will be the "dissidents," the old time Liberals? Surely they must support Mr. Gladstone in all well understood Liberal measures, such as one man one vote, shorter parliaments, reformed franchise etc. The only division between the dissidents and the Gladstonians is on the Irish question. After that is disposed of they can no longer hold, unless they identify themselves with the Tory party after fighting against that party all their political life time, or set up in business for themselves as a destructive party. In either case the country will be against them. Mr. Gladstone will (if he lives through the crisis) have a majority of nearly one hundred so soon as the dissidents fall into line, and that will be after the Irish question is settled in the House of Commons.

FREDERICTON AS A SUMMER RESORT.

The Reporter of the Gleaner had an interview with Governor Russel of Massachusetts when in Fredericton a few days ago on his way homewards from his fishing trip to the Miramichi. According to the reporter the governor is quite enthusiastic over the beauties of Fredericton and its fine balmy climate, and suggests the formation of a company to build summer cottages on the bank of the river or any part of Fredericton, for the benefit of summer visitors from the large American cities who are tired of the hotel life they experience in the United States by the seaside. He says hundreds of families would spend three or four months in the year, and pay a a whole year's rent for the use of a cottage, where they could have home life and quietness in a fine atmosphere. He says the place has only got to be made known and hundreds of families would come down, and he suggests the formation of a company to build cottages of the required kind, and also another furniture company to make light, suitable, inexpensive furniture for the use of said cottages. The whole thing seems very fine as far as words go and practicable. We know, however, at least a dozen houses, cottages, etc., in Fredericton that have been standing idle for some time, some of them finely situated, at moderate rents too—in fact where such a family as can afford to travel, pays $2,000 a year rent in Boston, may get as good a house in Fredericton for $200 or less. As our Board of Trade is supposed to take an interest in the welfare and progress of the city, let them call a meeting and consider the report of Governor Russell's views in the Gleaner of the 2nd inst. We believe if a plan were worked and a proper company formed capital may be raised among the rich men and business men of Fredericton, in the way of stock. There is Bar Harbor a foggy place containing numerous such cottages which are crowded every summer by American houses. Also Campobello (contains first-class houses) the last place made after the world was created.

Under the law taxing inheritances, the New York authorities have assessed the estate of the late Daniel Fayerweather $188 389 on account of the bequests made by him to colleges outside the state of New York. The counsel for the state resists this assessment on the ground that the beneficiaries are educational institutions within the law, the same as the colleges in New York, whose benefactions are not taxed. No decision has yet been made by the courts, but it is intimated that educational institutions outside of New York cannot get the benefit of an exemption.

Cyrus W. Field lost all his money before he died, but he left a goodly heritage nevertheless. The fame of the man who laid the first Atlantic cable is something surives misfortune and the weeks of time.

The experience of the manufacturers of the "Myrtle Navy" tobacco is a valuable lesson in political economy. Previous to their commencing that brand, the tobacco made of the finest Virginia Leaf, was always held at fancy prices, and put up in some fancy style of manufacture. It was thought that only the rich would buy such tobacco, and at the old prices none but the rich could buy it. The makers of the "Myrtle Navy" resolved to strip the manufacture of the tobacco of all its fancy costs and put their profit at so low a race that no competitor could possibly undersell them with the same quality of article. From the very first, until now, their rate of profit has been a uniform percentage upon the cost. It is their enormous sales which make their low rate of profit a satisfactory one in the aggregate, and also gives them their firm hold upon the market. Their success is an excellent lesson for manufacturers to study over.

On Friday of last week Frank Sisk, the driver of the Tracadie mail, presented an order to Mr. Snowball, in favor of Mr. Murray, and purporting to be signed by Mr. Graham. It was evidently a forgery, as Mr. Graham's signature is familiar to Mr. Snowball's clerks, and was not paid. On Monday, after it had been ascertained that no such order had been issued by Mr. Graham, Sisk was arrested and lodged in the lock-up. He was released on Tuesday, at the instance of Mr. Snowball, on his own recognizance, to appear when wanted for examination. Sisk says he got the order from John McMahon, postmaster at Tracadie, who asked him to get it cashed for him. It is for $23.62.—Chatham World.

How the Domestic, Social and Literary World is Wagging.

Bicycle Dealer: 'This machine will be better for your boy than a pony. It doesn't eat anything.'

Frugal Parent (not entirely convinced): 'No, it won't eat anything; but I'm afraid it'll give the boy a thundering big appetite.'

He: 'The worst thing about me is my nose; I've got such a beastly one.'

She; 'You shouldn't say such things about a gift.'

He: 'A gift? I—ah—don't understand.'

She: 'Wasn't it a birthday present?'

Mrs. Gadd: 'Wouldn't it be grand if science should discover the moon to be inhabited, and hit on some way to talk with our lunar neighbors?'

Mrs. Gabb: 'Indeed it would. They would be near enough to talk to, yet not near enough to be running in at all hours of the day you know.'

The subject for conversation at an evening entertainment was the intelligence of animals, particularly dogs.

Said Robinson, 'There are dogs that have more sense than their masters.'

'Just so,' responded young Jones. 'I've got that kind of dog myself.'

Famous Derby Winners.

Enthusiasm in connection with our classic races is now somewhat out of date. Very few sportsmen nowadays would arrive at such a pitch of excitement as the inhabitant of Richmond, in Yorkshire, who, according to "The Druids," refused to go to bed on the night of the day which saw the Derby winner, Voltigeur, win the Doncaster Cup in 1850. "Wha talks o' going to bed," he inquired, angrily, "when Voltigeur's won t' Leger and t' Coop?"

Among famous Derby winners the first must perforce have a place. Diomed, the victor in 1780, when the race was established, enjoyed a long life, for on the other side of the Atlantic this horse was in full health and vigor when more than thirty years old. Epsom races have made a big stride forward since that time, although it is just possible that the Summer meeting would have collapsed altogether had not Lord George Bentinck come to the rescue some fifty years since, by lending a sum of five thousand pounds to save the Derby and Oaks from extinction.

Among the hundred and odd winners of "the blue ribbon of the turf," we must notice Champion, the winner in 1800, who was the first to win the "double event" of the Derby and St. Leger, a feat which was not again accomplished until 1848, in Surplice's year. In 1801 the Derby was won by a filly Eleanor, who also won the Oaks, a double victory only achieved once since, by Blink Bonny, in 1857. From 1801 to Mameluke's Derby of 1827 we find such well-known names—to sportsmen, at any rate—as Tyrant, Hannibal, Pan, Whalebone, Smolensko, Blucher, Cedric, and Lapdog among the victors.

After Mameluke won the Derby for Lord Jersey, in 1827, he was purchased by Mr. Gully for four thousand pounds with a view to emulating the Champion feat, and winning the St. Leger. But for the starter being against him he would probably have won easily enough. His famous struggle against Matilda, however, was long remembered, and Sir Francis Doyle, who travelled from Eton to Doncaster on horseback in company with the Earl of Scarborough, to see the race, said that, in his opinion, there was only one other event in his time to be compared with it, viz., the race for the Gold Cup at Richmond, in 1815, won by Filho da Puta.

Cadland, in 1828, was only returned a Derby winner after a dead-heat with The Colonel, who afterwards won the St. Leger. Bay Middleton, the victor of 1836, was a very high-spirited, fractious and thin-skinned animal, and cut many a shine during his training.

A few years ago there lived at a little wayside inn at Mickleham, near Dorking, an ostler who proudly boasted that he was the first to lift "the Demon," George Fordham, into a saddle. Upon the hill overlooking this hostelry there may be seen, under the wooden palings of Juniper Park, what is still called "Bay Middleton's Gallop," and here, for a fortnight or so previous to the Derby, did Bay Middleton kick up his heels and make things hum generally for the stable lads.

Respecting our next notable winner—Little Wonder, in 1840—there was a base insinuation that he was more than three years old at the time of his victory. This rumor, however, was satisfactorily proved to be false, a remark which also applies to the somewhat similar contretemps respecting the Hungarian-bred Kisher, the Derby winner of 1876.

For Cotherstone's victory in 1843, Mr. Bowes, the owner, was undoubtedly indebted to the skill and nerve of his jockey, Bill Scott. In fact, John Kent has told us, through the Duke of Beaufort's interesting volume, that had Gaper (whom Lord George Bentinck, the owner, had backed to win one hundred and thirty-five thousand pounds) been ridden by George Abdale in place of Sam Rogers, he would, in the opinion of his trainer, have been returned the winner. Not the only instance by many in which victory has rested more on the ability of the rider than that of the horse.

Surplice, the winner of 1848, was also winner of the St. Leger. The latter race will always be remembered by sportsmen. Flatcatcher, Caneson, and Surplice might have been covered by a sheet as, with Flatcatcher leading, they closed for the final struggle. The first to cry "enough" was Flatcatcher, and then terrific was the fight between Surplice and Caneson. The lurching action of the former, however would not be denied and the double event (which had previously been only accomplished by Mr. Wilson's bay colt Champion) was repeated.

In 1852, the riding of Frank Butler on Daniel O'Rourke undoubtedly won the race. It was a victory to be mentioned in the same breath as that of Cotherstone, of that of Maidment on Cremorne in 1872, and those of Fred Archer on Bend Or and Melton in 1880 and 1885. In West Australian's year grand riding again carried the day, although it was not until Johnny Osborne, upon Honeywood's hack, had frightened Colonel Ansen out of his wits by getting so close, that the first hero of the triple crowns was allowed to win the Derby.

6TH HALF-YEARLY COMPETITION.

The Most Interesting Contest Ever Offered by the Canadian Agriculturist.

One Thousand Dollars in Cash, a pair of handsome Shetland Ponies, Carriage and Harness, and over two thousand other valuable prizes for the Agriculturist's brightest readers! Who will have them? According to the usual custom for some years past the publishers of THE AGRICULTURIST now offer their Sixth Half-yearly Literary Competition. This grand competition will, no doubt, be the most gigantic and successful one ever presented to the people of the United States and Canada.

One Thousand Dollars in cash will be paid to the person sending in the largest list of English words constructed from letters in the words "The Canadian Agriculturist."

Five Hundred Dollars in cash will be given to the second largest list.

A Handsome Pair of Shetland Ponies, Carriage and Harness, will be given for the third largest list.

Over one thousand additional prizes awarded in order of merit: One Grand Piano; $900 organ; $400 piano; Dinner Sets; Ladies' Gold Watches; Silk Dress Patterns; Portiere Curtains, Silver Tea Services, Tennyson's Poems, bound in cloth; Dickens' in 12 volumes, bound in cloth, etc.

As there are more than 1,000 prizes, any one who takes the trouble to prepare an ordinary good list will not fail to receive a valuable prize. This is the biggest thing in the competition line that we have ever placed before the public, and all who do not take part will miss an opportunity of a life time.

Rules.—1. A letter cannot be used oftener than it appears in the words "The Canadian Agriculturist." For instance the word "egg" could not be used, as there is but one "g" in the three words. 2. Words having more than one meaning but spelled the same can be used but once. 3. Names of places and persons barred. 4. Errors will not invalidate a list—the wrong words will simply not be counted.

Each list must contain one dollar to pay for six month's subscription to "The Agriculturist." If two or more tie, the largest list which bears the earliest postmark will take the first prize, and the others will receive prizes in order of merit. United States money and stamps taken at par.

The object in offering these magnificent prizes is to introduce our popular magazine into new homes, in every part of the American continent.

Every competitor enclosing 30 cents in Lamps extra, will receive free, by mail, postpaid, one to "The Canadian Agriculturist's" Elegant Souvenier Spoons of Canada.

Prizes awarded to persons residing in the United States will be shipped from our New York office free of duty. All money letters should be registered.

Our Former Competiton.—We have given away $25,000 in prizes during the last two years, and have thousands of letters from prize-winners in every state in the union and every part of Canada and Newfoundland. Lord Kilcoursie A. D. C., to the Governor General of Canada, writes: "I shall recommend my friends to enter your competitions," M. M. Branden, Vancouver, B. C., "received $1,000 in gold" and we hold his receipt for same. A few of the prize winners: Miss J. Robinson, Toronto, $1,500; J. J. Branden, Fenelon Falls, Ont., $1,500; David Harrison, Syracuse, N. Y., $535; H. Beavis, St. Louis, Mo., $300; Jas. Baptie, West Duluth, Minn., $500; Miss Georgina Robertson, Oak St., Brooklyn, $1,000; Fred H. Hills, 359 State St., Bridgeport, Conn., and thousands of others.

Address all communications to THE AGRICULTURIST, Peterborough, Ontario.
