The celebrated Stallion Victor Hugo will stand the season of 1890 in the town of Newcastle except Wednesday of every week he will stand at the stables of Mr. James Conway, Chatham, Mr. Conway will leave Newcastle with Victor Hugo Tuesday evening, April 29th, and every following Tuesday evening during the season, go down through Douglastown to Mr. Wm. Stothart's where he will wrive about seven o'clock renain there about one hour and then cross over to Chatham where he will strand Wednesday, Coming back to Newcastle early Thursday morning. We thought it better for the horse and for those who patronize him not to have him go over so much road as it has been customary to do with heavy stallions, and in conversation with a great many people we find they are better satisfied to bring their mares to town known they will always find the horse at home and not tired out with long tooks. nant the force at home and the tirted out with mong roads, Victor is looking finely and feeling as well as he ever did in his life. It is needless to say anything of his good qualities as a stock getter. Every farmer and lumberman in thi Jounty knows his value.

careful analysis of the measure, says: The plan of dealing with the liquor question, which is now suggested for England and Wales, is evidently modelled in part upon the Gothenburg system, which has been successfully carried out in Sweden. The fundamental principles of this system are a great reduction in the number of liquor shops and a corresponding improvement in the character of those licensed, a provision that the sale of food shall be an inseparable adjunct of the sale of liquor and the delega ion of exclusive authority over licensing to local authorities. Lord Randolph proposes that every county in England shall be divided into licensing divisions, for each of which to the historical literature of Canada yet given to the public.

We take the following from the prospectus of the work:—

To the most valuable contribution a committee of the County Council will be appointed annually to act as a licensing commission. Their power as to the suppression of licenses will be absolute and final. The bill itself, John McKinnon, As place in each of the other team.

Nothing more clearly shows the difference of opinion between England and America on the liquor question ess. The local option feature is also introduced in Causchill's bill. It provides that the power of the licensing commission to grant lie uses may be suspended in any parish, if two-third of the ratepayers shall vote to that effect. The resolution may be rescinded after the expiration of a year, if twothirds vote for such reseinding; otherwise the suspension remains in force for three years.
