A CONVENIENT SORE THROAT. English newspapers are now telling this story. Indeed, some of them say it is true.

A member of the military band at a certain barrack came to the surgeon recently with a long face and a plaintive story about a sore throat. "Sore throat, eh?" said the surgeon, pleasantly. "Let he see. Oh, that's not so bad. A slight irritation, nothing more. You'll be all right in a day or two. I think you had better take no risk of renewing the trouble by using your throat, though, so I will recommend you for a fortnight's sick leave." Armed with the surgeon's certificate, the bandsman obtained two week's sick leave. The two weeks had just come to an end when he met the surgeon on the parade ground. The bandsman saluted. The surgeon recognized the face and stopped." How's the throat?" he asked pleasantly. "Its' quite well, sir," was the reply. "That's good," said the surgeon. "You can get back to your duty without fear. By the way, what instrument do you handle in the band?" "The small drum, sir," said the musician.

RAISED PHOTOGRAPHS.

"(London Figaro.) Cecil Lawrence has just been showing me a picture of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales in the "new photograph." It is a vivid likeness of the prince, but the startling thing about this new process is that every rise of the feature or dress is reproduced by or dress is reproduced by similar risings in the picture. It looks like an "inflated" platinotype, and reminds you at once of those maps where the mountains swell from the smooth surface. They are very expensive photographs, but they are bound to make a hit. Cecil Lawrence and Frank Mcsudden death on Wednesday night has Naughton represent a syndicate, of cast a gloom over the place.
