THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

Sir Hugh Allan's Testimony—His Motives in Aiding Elections—Mr. Abbott on the Stand.

Special Despatch to the Daily News. OTTAWA, Sept. 19.

The Royal Commission examined Sir Hugh Allan, who identified the impounded documents as genuine, opened letters, and the important papers bearing on the case are included in the package.

Allan also produced the contract with the American capitalists and a supplementary contract. The Government was not aware until very recently of the existence of either. There was no stipulation in either contract to delay the construction or interfere in any way with the Canadian interests, the only object was to get the best route for the road.

He received $40,000 from the Americans, most of which was expended in the preliminary work, the balance when he found the Government determined to execute the American he refunded every cent of it.

The remainder of Sir Hugh's evidence was very interesting and important. He acknowledged having received $100,000 to the election, and voluntarily gave the amount. For this there was no arrangement for payment, nor did he ever expect payment for any money advanced by him.

He never understood the terms spoken by Sir George in his letter, but supposed that Sir George had an idea of repaying the money by subscription among his friends. The total amount spent by him was $380,000, but in this sum $100,000 was for elections, the balance for the Pacific and Northern Colonization Railway schemes.

In cross-examination, Judge Day asked if he had ever subscribed so largely to an election before. Sir Hugh said No; in this case it was actuated by a variety of motives. I was very desirous to support the Government in its commercial views, as their policy was entirely in accordance with my views for the advancement of the Province. They had undertaken a comprehensive emigration scheme, and a large scheme for canal extension and improvement of the commercial and agricultural resources of the country, and for the bringing down of produce of the West in this direction, in which I was greatly interested. They had undertaken to enlarge the harbor of Montreal to both light and heavy traffic, and I was in a large extent interested in the project, particularly in the canal, inasmuch as it was of my own interest in it, and partly from the fact that the Northern Colonization Railway, which was to be built, was to be built, and there was some doubt whether it would be built, and I was interested in the project.

He was also interested in the elections as the members of the Government were my friends, although I never took an active part in politics. I was also interested being largely engaged in the carrying trade, and I saw plainly that my interest was to support the present Government to the best of my ability.

Judge Day—With regard to this sum that you gave towards election, was it sufficient to repay you? Not at all. I gave it entirely out of my own funds. I did not borrow money, or go to any bank for it, or procure in any way a money of the firm of which I am a member. I do not know how the money was distributed. I am quite sure Sir George never intended to repay me out of the funds appropriated to the Canada Pacific road, and I am quite sure it could not be done even if he wished to do so. There is no doubt that he had been any other agreement between Sir George and myself except that arising out of Sir George's agreement with the 30th July, which was as follows: The friends of the Government expect to be assisted with funds in the coming elections, and any amount you or your company will advance will be recognized by the Government, and never to be repaid.

He denied in detail all the statements respecting the sum alleged to have been given to Sir Francis Hill & Co., Sir John, Outman, and others. He said that he had never given any money to any of the persons mentioned by the Government, and never to any other person mentioned by the Government, and never to any other person mentioned by the Government, and never to any other person mentioned by the Government.
