To the Editor of the C. P. Herald: DEAR SIR,—According to promise I ow send you a statement of wages in the Old Country and in Almonte.

From newspapers received from the Old Country, it appears that the workpeople in the woolen district of Yorkshire have had a general advance in their wages, the Cloth Finishers of Huddersfield, have had an advance of 20 per cent, field, have had an advance of 20 per cent, and in some cases without even asking for it, in the card-rooms the card cleaners who got 20 shillings sterling per week, have had an advance of two shillings per week, for the same work here they pay 80 cents per day; and I am told by a weaver from the Old Country that the manufacturers pay near half as much again for weaving a yard of cloth, as they do here, and so on through all the process of manufacturing. There is one process of manufacturing. There is one vantage that the manufacturers in the Old Country have over the manufacturers here—the children under 13 years of age are not so well paid as they are here, but the law only allows them to work employer to pay the school wage for the other half-day, so the advantage is more apparant and than real, and I think from apparant and than real, and I think from the above it is very plain that the differ-ence if any is very slight, and if the work-people of the Old Country are only half paid we must come to the conclusion that the workpeople of Almonte are very little more than half-paid considering they have to work six hours per week more for what they get.

Now Mr. Editor, with your permission
I will say a few words in reply to a letter in the Almonte Gazette signed justice.
In the first place Mr. Justice says, that employing girls in No. 1 Mule room to save expense is positively untrue; if he had given reasons to prove the assertion untrue it would have looked more straightforward, girls are employed when boys could be had and I should say far

ore suitable for the work on account of

In the second place he says the girls were only worked over time once and that at their own request. I am no aware that the employers of No. 1 Mill are noted for consulting their hands as to the advisability of running their machinery either overtime or any other time. Now with respect to the fine of one dollar, I don't think any reasonable parent either would or should encourage hildren in leaving their work, but a the same time when the other mills in the village gave their hands a holiday on a day which has been recognised in the eighbourhood for years as a genera holiday. I think no one but an unreason able employer would expect them to work, and again if the half days' labour of each band is worth one dollar, the profit of a mill employing 300 hands must be about 600 dollars per day to pay for wear and tear. We certainly hall soon get to the enormous profit the manufacturers are getting.

Again Mr. Justice says nothing but ill-will could have induced me to write An enormous lot of LADIES CLOUDS ch a letter. Where was Mr. Justice when the insult to the Old Country millworkers was printed in the Almont Guartte, surely he must have been asle or his bandage was tied so tight that he could neither seen or hear, but as soon as the insult is resented, and the truth told ndage falls off, and Mr. Justice see nothing but ill-will-new? how that ill-will engendered, but by insult heaped upon the Old Country ill workers by the employers of Almonto sonally; but must appear publicly in next issue of the Almonte Gazette ith their insults. Did Mr. Justice or ne else think for a single moment t the Old Country work people in onte would sit down quietly with treatment; if he did he was as ch mistaken as the committee were they thought at the least they uld meet with a gentlemanly refusal not with insult, to their request for ction in the hours of labour. w I will say a few words to the litor of the Almonte Gazette. I should vise him to print as far as possibl truth. Mr. Justice says that I first ied to the Almonte Gazette to have letter printed, but did not succeed e editor must know that to be false I have not been juside his establishfor months, and the manuscript left my possession until it was sted by my own hands, so that he will have to deny that or say that the letter and been tampered with; but the poor

In conclusion I would advise Mr. Justice to be more circumspect in the future, and read both sides of the queson, and not charge them that act in elf-defence, in doing so through nothing but ill-will, and let the aggressor go free. Yours truly, ellow is more to be pitied than blamed, or he only dare go as the wires are oulled, and it is well known who pulls

POUR INK.

William Ink is dead. For 103 years e survived. Now that he has departed e paragraphists have him. Some hav id he should have been called "Indel ole," and other jokes have passed and vill pass upon his devoted-now deadlead. They will say that he is linked with immortality, though ink-origible when a youth. They will say that though hen a youth. They wanted age, people ak-redulous as to his right age, people ill yet believe in-copying ink, espec in his power of living. That his iends had no ink-ling of the event, and that he has left no ink-liftgs behind him nake ink-uiry as to his religion, they will be ink-uisitive about his life and bits, and then pursuing the point inkstion will ask why did not ink stand. So the puns will go the rounds, and this will be the last of a man whose only crime was, that he bore the name of

It is a noble and great thing to cover he blemishes and to excuse the failings of a friend; to draw a curtain before his ains, and to display his perfections; to oclaim his virtues upon the housetop. Justice consists in doing no injury to decency, in giving them no
