While viewing with great favor th reduction of licenses and the zeal mani-fested in enforcing the license law by the commissioners appointed by the new Ontario Government, political friends of that Government have diffi culty in reconciling such meritorious work on the part of servants with the high handed retrograde action of their masters in the Blenheim case. There the recorded will of the people called for local option, and the late Govern ment refused to issue licenses; but the new Government has seen fit to disre gard the vote polled, and have issued icenses in that village. To the average partisan, such an act could be explaine quite satisfactorily about election time but just now it is very hard to under stand.
