

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

	PAGE
How to Dress and What to Take.—Checking Baggage.—Trip over the Pennsylvania Railroad.—A Halt and a Dinner in Chicago.—Minneapolis: its Flour-Mills, and its Beautiful Buildings, Lakes, and Parks	1-9

CHAPTER II.

West from Minneapolis.—Comforts of the Dining-Car.—Bismarck.—Previous Visit in 1883.—Grant, Villard, and Evarts.—Sitting Bull's Unpopularity.—The Bad Lands.—Marquis de Mores's Unsuccessful Venture.—The Yellowstone River.—Indians, Cowboys, and Ever-changing Scenery.—The Wonders of the Yellowstone Park.—A Trip through it with President Arthur, General Sheridan, and Others, All Now Deceased.—Helena, Montana.—A Sunday Dinner on Board the Train.—Wonderful Trestles and Engineering.—Clark's Fork.—Lake Pend d'Oreille.—The Sportsman's Paradise.—Spokane Falls.—Miles of Uninteresting Sage Grass.—Moxie Farm.—An Amusing Visitor.—The Cascade Mountains.—Stampede Tunnel.—The Puyallup Valley.—Arrival at Tacoma	10-33
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-------

CHAPTER III.

Tacoma of Seven Years Ago.—Tacoma of To-Day.—Its Prosperous Population.—Culture and Refinement.—Lumber Mills and Shipping.—Rapid Building.—"The Tacoma" Hotel.—Mount Tacoma,	34-44
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-------

CHAPTER IV.

The Steamship Queen .—Her Admirable Appointments.—Obliging Officers and Servants.—Captain Carroll and One of his Jokes.—Seattle.—Its Wonderful Growth since the Great Fire.—An Indian's Floating Residence.—Puget Sound.—Its Beautiful Islands.—Wonderful Young Cities.—Anacortes and Fairhaven.—Port Townsend.—Fresh Arrivals from San Francisco	45-56
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-------