

arrangements with some practical and reliable person who is not a professional man to superintend the work for moderate wages, say, $20 per diem. If there is any further work in connection with the proposed drainage which will require the services of an Engineer, Mr Vaughan might be engaged to do the same at the ordinary professional rates, but he should not be employed to do work which can be so well or better executed by a good practical man accustomed to deal with such kind of country ditching.

Yours, Sir,
 Your obedient servant
 Alexander Jones
 Deputy Asst. Commr.
