A Peterboro County Farm

Ed. The Dairyman and Farming World: Last week I visited several farmers in the Township of Smith, in Peterboro County, and find on the whole that they are well satisfied with the prospects for crops. The outlook on Mr. Walton's farm on the 2nd line is very promising. All crops with the exception of mangels are in excellent condition.

"I had eight bushels of aliske late to the acre and expect to do even better than that this season," said Mr. Walton. "I have everything in first-class shape on the farm and am pleased to say it is remarkably free from weeds. This farm has been in the possession of our family for about 100 years. My grandfather was one of the first settlers here and the farm has never changed hands since granted to him by the Government. The settlers had to carry their wheat to Port Hope to be ground into flour and then carry it back; and yet, we still hear of some farmers grumbling at the hardships of farming."

"THIS CHEESE FACTORY"

"The building you are now looking at in the first building which was erected in the Township for the manufacture of cheese. I now use it as a driving shed. It really should be pulled down, but I am loath to do so on account of its old associations. My grandfather raised a lot of the best pure b.-d cattle in his day, having at one time over eighty head. The Edwards' herd at Rocklands originally came from here. They purchased their first three females and one bull here, and so laid the foundation of their herd which is now considered by experts, to be the best in the province of Ontario.

"My barn is 80 ft. x 45 ft. and ventilated on the King system. The walls are of stone and 9 feet 6 inches in height, 22 in. in thickness. There are cement floors throughout. I have a room for 23 head of cattle besides stalls for nine horses and two loose boxes. It is exceptionally well lighted and a man can see to all parts of the stables under light at any time of the year. I have a constant supply of fresh water before the cows at all times, by means of a trough running the whole length in front of the cows. I intend building a cement silo very shortly as I have come to the conclusion, after seeing those in use, that I cannot afford to be without one. I would not be without a manure spreader for anything, considering the labor saved and the evenness with which the manure is distributed. Besides a field requires only about a third of the quantity of manure as it does when spread by hand."

"One of my neighbors, a few seasons ago, put the manure in heaps in three or four rows on part of his land. The balance he put on with a spreader (third for the occasion). To see the difference in the crops is simply amazing, it hardly seems possible, but it is true nevertheless. He now has a spreader of his own and would not be without one having his experience of hand spreading."

EVERYTHING TIDY AND NEAT

A noticeable feature on this farm is the tidiness and order in which everything is kept. Not a thing is out of order and no rubbish or litter lying around as in some cases on other farms. Mr. Walton at present is retaining a few hogs and finds them fattening about 15 cattle this fall.

Mr. Walton thinks the idea of Government inspection of milk, houses, and udders an excellent one, as it would create a feeling of security in the city among milk users if their interests were being looked after in the country, as well as in the lower end of the chain. Besides there is a great deal of such inspection. Farmers would then endeavor to keep their places sweet and wholesome, not as in too many instances today, dirty and evil smelling. F. E. Durie, travelling representative of The Dairyman and Farming World.

The Old Way Good Enough

Ed. The Dairyman and Farming World.—Speaking of cow testing associations, let me say at the outset that I have retired from farming and am not particular whether or not my neighbors, or anybody else, "test" their cows in the manner directed by the Dominion Government. They may please themselves. I am over 70 years of age, and have followed farming all my life, with the exception of the last two years. I have been much interested in cattle, especially in dairy cows, and have been successful in the dairy business. For over 30 years I have been dealing in cattle, other than those on my own farm, hence I have had some experience.

Now, if in raising cattle, the dairy is the only object in view, take the prescribed way of "testing"; but there are other qualities to be considered. The farmer wants, or, in my opinion, should want, large, healthy and vigorous cattle. If we secure good dairy cows, and any industrious and intelligent farmer will know which ones to dispose of without having to resort to "particulars" or "test" or theory. Of course if the farmer is careless, indifferent and, perhaps, lazy, no example or precept will make him much better.—Jacob White, Peterboro County, Ont.
