Russian Victory Over Austrians

[By Special Wire to The Courier.]

LONDON, Sept. 2 .- The announcement from Vienna that preparations have been made for the evacuation of Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, in view of the inevitability of an approaching Russian occupation, is the first official admission that the Austrians have been worsted in the prolonged fighting in Galicia.

Russian accounts from this field of operations have been coninuously cheerful. Even the defeat of Russians by the Germans in East Prussia has unabated the optimism of Petrograd. The Russian chief of the general staff calls the affair merely a reverse, due to the unexpected appearance of heavy German reinforcements, accompanied by siege guns apparently from the fortresses of Thorn and Graudenz

Nothing so complete as the present censorship of news from the actual battle line in France has been known since the beginning of the war.

The significance of the removal of the German military headquarters at Coblenz to an unknown destination is difficult to estimate, but the change is regarded as highly interesting. The announcement by a Paris paper that fourteen German staff officers have been captured and interned at Nimes is the first intimation of this incident.

The Russian embassy here has thought it desirable formally to deny reports of pogroms at Vilna, which it attributes to German and Austrian sources. The embassy has received a despatch from Petrograd (St. Petersburg) declaring the reports to be without foundation and stating that Vilna is perfectly calm. The Christian and Jewish populations are working together for the relief of the wounded.

Re-assuring News

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

PARIS, Sept. 2 .- Commenting on the war situation to-day, the Temps says:

"It is not the few troops which the Germans can push ahead that can besiege Paris. The important point is the centre, where we perceive a hesitation. The German troops are out of breath, and one of their army corps has been transferred toward their eastern frontier. It is probable that we have in front of us on the centre forces diminished by fatigue, by our fire and by withdrawals to reinforce the east Prussian army.

"In any case, our contingents have had their vacancies filled and their ammunition replenished, while the enemy is encountering great difficulty in getting supplies."

Fiercest Frontal Attack in all History Was Made by the Germans on British.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON,, Sept. 2, 4.27 p.hm. —The Chronicle correspondent from an unnamed point in France, gives a description obtained from gives a description obtained from officers of the great battle of Mons on August 26. It says: "All soldiers agree that Wed-nesday's battle was by far the more terrible. Certainly it came at the end of several days' fighting, but they tell me the Germans put more strength into that day's work than perhaps any other. "An officer told me it was a terrible day. I think the Ger-mans knew there was an oppor-tunity to wipe out the Birtish force and they brought up vast numbers of their best and fresh-est men. The German forces as-sailed the British position not only with determination, but with what I can only justly call fer-ocity ocity. 'No doubt the German General Staff were of the opinion that the British force could not stand before an attack by an enemy twice as strong in number and much so in artillery. It was really the first occasion in his-tory in which a battle has taken place between a German and a British army and I think when we can read its story as we can that of Waterloo, it will be found that that battle, in which twice as many men were engag-ed as at Waterloo, deserves a far higher place, purely as a military achievement.

"It was something really awe-inspiring, one officer said in speaking of the same day, to see those terrific German rushes. The attacking forces were well served too by artillery and that has not always here the has not always been the case.

Generally the artillery fire from the Germans has been rather poor. "When you saw the rush start, you thought nothing on earth could stop it. That those tre-mendous charges were stopped and the attacker driven back in disorder is due in the first place, I am certain to the magnificent marksmanship of the Brit-ish soldiers. The officers naturally epxected a good deal in this particular direction. but I don't think they thought the men would do so superbly in ac-tual warfare.

"At the end of practically a week's hard marching and harder fighting and in the face of perfighting and in the face of per-haps, the fiercest frontal atack ever delivered in modern war-fare, it must have surprised the Germans and judging from what they saw, the officers stated. Wednesday was the most serious day for Germany since the war began." began.
