A MOTHER'S TRIBUTE.

Pathetic Ceremony at Night on an Atlantic Liner.

Strange, perhaps, to us, but very touching, is the tender, intimate solitude of the Latin races for their dead—"I nostri morti," as the Italians are wont to call those whom they have lost. There is a simple pathos in the incident that was related by a passenger on one of the great transatlantic mail boats.

A few days before the steamer sailed from Havre its captain received a letter from a peasant woman of Indre-et-Loire. In it she explained that her only son had been a cook on the Titanic and had gone down with the vessel. She was sending, she wrote, a cross which she begged him to drop into the sea at the spot where the disaster occurred.

The cross came in due time, a simple cross of wood, fashioned rudely enough by the mother's fingers, and one night, as the great vessel neared Newfoundland, for the space of a minute her engines ceased to pulse and the little wooden cross, weighted with lead, sank beneath the waves of the Atlantic.

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little one. They act as a gentle laxative, sweeten the stomach, break up colds and make feeding easy. Concerning them Mrs. Alphonse Landry, Upper Carleton, N. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BANISH THE SLUMS.

(Toronto News)

The housing conditions which prevail in Toronto are dangerous to health and to the physical and moral stamina of the community. The isolated fortunes that are being made out of slum property will have to be paid for many times over by the whole community, and the greater part of the burden will fall on industry. The debt will have to be paid ultimately in hard cash, and the interest is being paid now in lives, in suffering and in misery.

TRAWLERS HURT THE TELEPHON

Some difficulty is being experienced by the Japanese telegraph service owing to the damage caused to the submarine cables off the coast of Japan by fishing trawlers. Owing to the profitable nature of the business, there has recently been a large increase in the number of trawlers, with the result that an interruption of the cable service is frequently caused. The authorities of the Government Telegraphs and Agriculture Departments are at present conferring as to the steps to be taken to overcome the difficulty.

There is absolutely no attempt on the part of the British Government to interfere with our internal affairs. All that is asked is that we live up to our treaty obligations, which appear to be plainly set forth in the text of the convention. Beyond that, Great Britain does not care what we do. ## BABY WOOD DUCKS.

Journey to Water When They Leave Lofly Nests.

Somebody, Burroughs, I believe, said "the notion that the mother duck takes the young birds one by one in her beak and carries them to the creek is doubtless erroneous." I could not see how else it could be done. Writes a contributor to the Youth's Companion, and I spent several valuable days of several different years in trying to find out how it was done.

The thing that puzzled me was how the mother wood duck (Aix sponsa) managed to get her numerous progeny down from their lofty cradle and upon the water without injuring them. I was not alone in my ignorance; some very eminent ornithologists have wondered about the matter as well.

After a five mile punt one hot June day I let my boat lie in the shade or some lofty cottonwoods that grew on the lake shore, while I lay back and watched the play of shadows on the calm water.

A splash near by attracted by attention, and I looked around to see a mother wood duck just alighting. There was a little one by her side. I did not see how it got there. In a moment the old duck rose, circled a few times to gain altitude, and made direct for a hole in a large dead tree a few rods away. The hole was at least sixty feet from the ground. The duck squeezed her body through the opening and disappeared. She came back in a few moments with a duckling in her mouth. After resting for a moment she came sailing down and placed this baby beside the first. One after another she carried down the entire brood of eleven little yellow and black fluffy balls. They flapped their tiny wings and fluttered in the water as if that were not the first time they had ever been in swimming.

The mother duck returned once more to the tree to make sure that she had not overlooked one, came back, placed herself at the head of the procession, called softly to her babies and swam away, followed by the entire family in single file.

Largest of Extinct Animals.

The German expedition sent out to East Africa several years ago by the University of Berlin, and which is still at work in the Hinterland, has made a preliminary report, in which it is stated that although the explorers have so far found no complete skeletons of any large Dinosaurs, enough has been unearthed to prove that the largest African animals of that kind exceed by far the mightiest of North American Dinosaurs.

It is thought that the largest attained almost twice the length of the Diplodocus, of which there is a cast in the Natural History Museum at South Kensington, and which was eighty feet long. The neck of this reptile, Gigantosaurus, appears to have been at least fifteen feet longer than that of the Diplodocus and a good deal thicker, as the vertebrae are nearly twice as high as in the American monster. "Dull-witted giants" they have been called, with necks nearly forty feet long and six feet thick, with length of legs exceeding any known size.

But in their neighborhood was a reptilian fauna, almost more diverse than the assemblage of animal life in Africa to-day—the dragon tribe, large and small, herds of armed Dinosaurs, terrible in shape, with mighty spines along back and tail, small, swift Saurians, and others that flew, and the fearsome carnivorous reptiles, which would attack anything except, perhaps, a Gigantosaurus.—London Post.

An experimental street car known as the articulated car has just been put into service on one line in Boston. This car, according to Popular Mechanics, embodies a number of new features making for safety, comfort and convenience of passengers. As the name articulated indicates, the car is jointed, which enables it to take sharp curves without dangerous overhang of cars, and is, therefore, particularly well adapted to meet the conditions in Boston, which is famous for its narrow and crooked streets.

BALKAN ATROCITIES.

(Philadelphia Record)

A good deal of history will probably remain unrecorded until after the termination of the war in the Balkans. The action of the Mohammedan women of Stambul to the reigning queens of Christian Europe lifts the corner of the curtain to show a record of crime unsurpassed in bestiality by that of any previous war. "In the name of chivalry, honor and Christianity," charity, delusion to listen, madam," is the piteous cry; and these heart-broken women have hurled against the undisciplined hordes that loot and massacre in the wake of the Bulgarian and Serbian armies, are not unfrequently the most noble performances in this line; but the new unbound and unhindered rays of light from the Balkans appear to have been sent pupils in the Turkish school of ferocity.

MARROW BALLS.

A Tested Recipe By Caroline Coe.

One tablespoon of marrow taken from the soup of one bone before you put it on to boil.

Mix together:
The white of one egg beaten stiff and seasoned with one saltspoon of salt.
One slice of green pepper chopped fine.

And enough fine bread crumbs to make a dough stiff enough to hold into balls.

Make them half an hour before you are ready to cook them, as they retain their shape better if allowed to stand.

Drop them into any hot stock and let them simmer for six minutes, being careful not to crush them in taking out. Serve at once.

This is a recipe much used in Jewish families, who have many splendid ways of cooking food—ways that make for economy as well as palatableness and nourishment.

BUFFALO ROADS.

American Bison Was Great Highway Builder.

The buffalo was good surveyor, since its instinct led it to take the easiest and most direct paths over high lands and low to its goal. Channing and Lansing, who have given study to this matter, assure us that the buffalo observed something like the principles that to-day govern the operations of the civil engineer.

The explorers who landed on the southern shores of Lakes Erie, Michigan and Superior, very soon observed the buffalo roads or "traces." Sometimes these were narrow ditches, a foot wide and from six inches to two feet deep, trodden down by the impact of thousands of hoofs, as herd after herd of buffaloes had stamped along in single file behind their leaders.

When the first path became too deep for comfort, by reason of repeated travel, the bison would abandon it and begin a second path alongside the first, and thus the frequentated traces would be gradually widened. Or an immense herd of these heavy animals would crash through the forest, breaking in their rapid progress a broad, deep road from one feeding ground to another. Inasmuch as this route would be followed again and again by this and other herds, it would become quite level and as hard as a rock. The consequence was that the pioneer road-makers always greeted with joy the sight of a buffalo road. The line of many of these roads is followed to-day by railways and canals, just as in the old days it was followed by the log roads and turnpikes.

The buffalo followed the level of the valley. He swerved round high points whenever it was possible, crossing the ridges and watercourses at the least natural divides and gorges. He crossed from one side of a stream to the other repeatedly in order to avoid climbing up from the level, after the manner of our modern log railways.

DAFFODILS.

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills.
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host of golden daffodils.
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the Milky Way,
They stretched in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they
Outdid the sparkling waves in glee:
A poet could not but be gay
In such a jocund company.
I gazed—and gazed—but little thought
What wealth to me the show had brought.

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye,
Which is the bliss of solitude,
And then my heart with pleasure fills
And dances with the daffodils.

William Wordsworth

SHOWS DIRECTION OF SOUND.

A machine has been recently granted a patent by the United States Patent Office covering a method of determining the direction of a sound wave, or of locating a source of sound, and in doing this the waves emanating from such parts are compared by bringing first one part and then another through a common conductor. He employs an apparatus including two diametrically opposite receivers, the direction of the source of the sound waves being determined by moving one of the said receivers, thus keeping up pure paprap and so on. The particular sound wave was received.

A MATTER OF RIGHT.

(Toronto Star)

Culture women complain because they cannot vote, while ignorant men can. But at the bottom of all this discussion is what Walt Whitman calls "The never-ending audacity of elected persons," who think they are masters, when they are, or ought to be, servants of the people. "When the voters of the community claim right to withhold the vote from any other class? If no man or woman has the right to vote, how can any class of community have a right to a monopoly of voting power or of government?"

TO CLEAN CARPETS.

All carpets or rugs should be well beaten and rubbed with a broom before being cleaned. To beat properly hang them on a stout line, wrong side out. The sticks used should be pliable, with cloth in the form of a knot at the end to prevent tearing the carpet. After well beating the wrong side turn and beat the other in the same way. After the floor has been washed and become dry, the carpet can be relaid and then cleaned with a damp flannel cloth wrung out of warm soda or water containing ammonia or borax.

WIDER SKIRTS.

The dress of the near future need not necessarily be too tight, judging by Paris fashions of the moment. The newest skirts, though not full, are certainly not tight, although in the evening the panier form is still worn, and, as the modern woman is too vain to have anything punchy at her hips, the panier is simply made by tightening the skirt around the ankles.
