Stiff, Enlarged Joints Limber Up! Every Trace of Rheumatism Goes

Even Chronic Bedridden Cases are Quickly Cured.

Rub On Magic "Nerviline."

Nothing on earth can beat good old "Nerviline" when it comes to curing rheumatism.

The blessed relief you get from Nerviline comes mighty quick, and you need not wait a month for some sign of improvement.

You see Nerviline is a direct application; it is rubbed right into the sore joint, thoroughly rubbed over the twitching muscle that perhaps for years has kept you on the jump. In this way you get to the real source of the trouble. After you have used Nerviline just once you'll say it's amazing, a marvel, a perfect wonder of efficacy.

Just think of it, five times stronger and more penetrating than any other known liniment. Soothing, healing, full of pain-destroying power, and yet it will never burn, blister or destroy the tender skin of even a child.

You've never yet tried anything half so good as Nerviline for any sort of pain. It does cure rheumatism, but that's not all. Just test it out for lame back or lumbago. Gee, what a right fine cure it is for a bad cold, for chest tightness even for neuralgia headache it is simply the finest ever.

For the home, for the hundred and one little ailments that constantly arise, whether earache, toothache, stiff neck, or some other muscular pain—Nerviline will always make you glad you've used it, and because it will cure you, keep handy on the shelf a 50c. family size bottle; it keeps the doctor's bill small; trial size, 25c.; all dealers.

Memorial Service.

A large congregation assembled in George St. Church on Sunday evening to express their appreciation of the life, character and friendship of the late Hon. John B. Ayre.

The service was conducted by Rev. N. M. Guy, pastor of the Church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Fenwick and Rev. Dr. Curtis.

The Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite, an ex-Pastor, and who for twenty-five years was intimately connected with the deceased, delivered the oration, in which he paid a loving tribute to the memory of the departed. Beginning his remarks, Dr. Cowperthwaite said:—

"The good man whose loss we mourn to-day was endowed with gifts and graces beyond the ordinary. As a citizen he was a friend and counselor; as a member of the Church of his choice he was a pillar, and a fellow helper, and in the closer and personal relationships of life, his warm, tender affection will be a precious memory to kindred and personal friends."

The crisis we call death, which comes alike to all, came to him near the eventide when "The day is done, and the dark falls from the wings of night," but "the Light which never shone on sea or shore" was here to fling its radiance on the opening portals of the life celestial, and the genial, warm-hearted friend of all, and enemy of none, has passed through.

The change we call death came to him in an unexpected moment, as it has come to many who sleep in unknown graves on some battlefield, or who lie in some silent cavern of the ocean till the sea shall give up its dead, but it came by slow and steady changes and with many heralds of its event. But come it has, and all that was mortal of this citizen, friend and brother lies in the silence of the sepulchre, awaiting the voice of the Archangel and the trump of God."

Dr. Cowperthwaite very touchingly spoke of the many reminiscences which he cherished of the departed, and which were connected with his pastorate of George Street Church. "Those who in other days used to listen to the strains of the old organ as manipulated by him could never forget his interpretation of the spirit of some of the grand old hymns of the Church." A friend who used to sit near him has said, "that he has often seen his leader's eyes suffused with tears as he accompanied the choir on the organ in the rendering of the anthem which he so much loved."

What are these which are arrayed in white robes and whence came they? And now the man with the music in his soul, who for many years led the Praises of God in the Sanctuary, has joined the choir invisible in the white-robed throng around the throne.

Dr. Cowperthwaite referred to him as the "good Samaritan," remarking that "there is scarcely an outpost in this Colony but has felt in some way the influence of his kindly spirit, or the touch of his benevolent hand."

He bore witness to the unconscious influence of a quiet, unostentatious and manly life, the catholicity of his sympathies and his gifts; and the kind smile and genial greeting by which he endeared himself to the hearts of all.

"And so," concluded the speaker, "this memorial service is not in the nature of a long farewell to the good man who personally has ceased to work and live amongst us. His bodily presence will no more be seen on our streets, or in the assembly of those who worship in this House of God, but he still lives in loves and worships. He stands where his great forerunner stands, and meditates if his spirit is permitted to look down upon earthly sons, his gaze will sometimes be directed to this House he loved so much, and in which his spirit anticipated the endless Sabbath of unbroken praise and work and service."

The choir rendered very impressively the two favourite anthems of the deceased:—"What are these which are arrayed in white robes and whence came they," and "Vital spark." The solemnity of the service must have touched every heart, and conveyed to all a vision of the unseen and the eternal.—Com.

Missionary Services.

Unusual interest was manifested in the Missionary Anniversary services held in the College Hall in connection with the Coochran Street Church congregation. Large congregations and inspiring singing helped to make the services of the day the success they undoubtedly were.

The morning preacher was the Rev. G. J. Bond, D.D., of Halifax, who took as his text: "The time is short." The Doctor in beautiful and chaste language reminded his hearers of the shortness of time, and of the opportunities of life and service afforded to all, and to develop the Christian character, and all that was good in us.

In the afternoon after a short study of the Sunday School lesson, an open session was held. Miss Colton and Mr. C. Hatcher rendered solos and the Rev. Dr. Bond addressed the teachers and scholars.

The evening service was the crowning one of the day, every seat being occupied in the spacious hall. The opening exercises were conducted by the Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh, M. A. The Hon. R. A. Squires was introduced by the Pastor and presided over the meeting, making a model chairman.

Mr. Arthur Mews gave a rather unique report, and was glad to be able to say that the Newfoundland givings to missions had increased considerably during the last four years. Total amount subscribed all over our Island home last year being $18,878.00.

The address was given by the Rev. Dr. Bond. Seldom has there been such a masterly oration given in this city, as the one delivered by the learned doctor on missions, it could not but be otherwise, when we consider that the speaker had travelled two thousand miles into the heart of China and also had visited Japan, and other large cities. We trust the interest aroused by Dr. Bond may make a lasting impression on those who had the privilege of hearing him yesterday.

The choir rendered two very fine anthems, the solo being taken by Miss Vincent. Miss Herder also sang: "There is a green hill far away." We understand the offering was a very liberal one.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Gentlemen,—I had my leg badly hurt, the pain was very severe and a large swelling came above the knee. I expected it would be serious—I rubbed it with MINARD'S LINIMENT, which stopped the pain and reduced the swelling very quickly. I cannot speak too highly of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

It is difficult to tell which is the most troublesome time for both child and mother; bath time or hair-combing time. Certain it is that the nerves of each are usually worn to a frizzle when these times are over. A dear little girl of my acquaintance goes gladly and gladly through both trying periods, because her wise mother makes them pleasant for her. Grace is fond of perfume. Last Christmas she found among her other gifts a pretty little cut-glass atomizer filled with a sweet and not too heavy toilet water. She was told that if she would go through the hair-dressing time with patience and sweetness, she should have some of the sweetness in the bottle sprayed upon her complete coiffure. The ruse worked like a charm, for Mistress Grace found that there was no perfume for her upon the days she fretted and sulked and scolded at hairdressing time.
