

Fashions in Furniture.

Furniture fashions vary almost every season, there is always some newly-designed chair or lounge coming into vogue.

The present trend is toward upholstered furniture, a splendid selection of which we are now showing. Here—huge Cosy Chairs, Chesterfields and Lounges, over-stuffed and beautifully upholstered in Silk, Tapestry, Damask, etc.—gladden the eye, and there is no lack of smaller upholstered articles.

Salvage Notes.

Berry picking is at its height and the boys now, and on every day boat loads of people are gathering quantities of the various fruit for various purposes, notably for the manufacture of "Whort" which ranks next to "Sarsaparilla" in the opinion of many of our wine connoisseurs.

On Tuesday of this week the rector, Mr. E. H. Humphries, in fulfillment of a promise made at the time of the annual Sunday School picnic, took all the S.S. Teachers in the Mission Boat and went to Barr'd Island for a day. Apart from the pleasures inseparable from such an outing, the trip was rendered fairly profitable by the quantity of berries—about 45 gallons—brought home.

The schr. "Skyline," Thos. Tulk, master, of Newtown, home with 300 qts of fish, came here Tuesday to discharge part of her cargo to get made.

One of Salvage fleet have yet arrived, but messages report Mr. William Moss in the "Mary Kate" at Seaboard homebound, all sail used. The "Kate" was the last away and evidence seems to point to her being first.

Mrs. Thomas Tulk and child, Newtown, were here for a couple of days last week visiting friends and relatives.

Rev. E. H. Humphries with Nancy, daughter, went to Newtown today on a brief visit to his parents.

Place writing the above the "Mary Kate" has arrived in the harbour hailing for 300 qts. of fish.

Mr. Maxwell Lane, Bishop's Hr., left motor boat to-day en route for St. John's via Alexander Bay. Messrs. Arthur Lane and James Hiscok of that island, also left for the city, all intending to spend the winter studying hard at Bishop's College.

Miss Gertrude MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, and Miss Margaret, daughter of Mr. Geo. Lang-mead, watchmaker, St. John's, left Salvage to-day by S.S. Malakoff en route for St. John's.

Mr. Geo. Parsons, Alexander Bay, passed along yesterday homeward bound, hailing for 900 qts. codfish.

We understand that one or more of our workmen at Grand Falls are laid off by reason of the company's action in cutting things so fine in the running their plant. Every man thus thrown out of work makes it doubly harder for all, for although we have not the Communist doctrine in toto, nor have we sworn ourselves in as members of the "Brethren of the Common Table" (which society numbers eight in England), yet outport people are so united that the affliction of one becomes the affliction of all, and vice versa. We trust the unemployment period may be of short duration.—COR.

(Twillingate Sun)

Some inquiry has been made in reference to the position of the Sun financially and politically. Some say we are in with the fishermen, others say the F.P.U. and still others say the merchants. Then some are thinking that the Government or the Opposition must have control.

Well, Gentlemen! We can say we are independent enough to be clear of any such incumbrances. Of course nobody can be independent enough that he or she can live without the help of the other fellow. The multimillionaire cannot do that, he cannot digest his gold or silver.

We say we are in with anybody who can give us good reasonable grounds for their assertions and practices, therefore to that degree we are independent, and no one in this town, or any other town, has yet, or going to, we think, try to govern our policy in journalism, either politically or otherwise.

We should be helping to bear one another's burdens, and merchants cannot do without the patronage of the fisherman or laborer, and the latter cannot get along without the help of a salesman or supplier.

Unity means strength, but not in that motive of pulling down bridges, but in assisting one another to keep up the standard of liberty, and repairing the bridges which we all help to maintain.

We might say, financially we obtained a little help, and it came from right channels, and from which channels we know are not going to be made a foothold for political or any other policies, as long as we have control.

So with our own, and other Capital (for which we are thankful) we can keep the good old Sun shining and the dark clouds may appear, we expect the one with the silver lining will appear also.

Anyone waiting to contribute to this paper on important topics, are welcome in our columns, while we must say that if any want to be personal with anyone they must sign their own name to such articles and we will accept non de plumes on anything reasonable otherwise.

Grand Officers of Newfoundland Society to Visit Sydney.

St. John's, Nfld.—After 50 years of singular isolation, a sentimental reason having prevented the establishment of a lodge outside the Ancient Colony, the Order of United Fishermen is about to extend its boundaries by the institution of a lodge at Sydney. Application having been received by the Grand Lodge some months ago from brethren residing in Sydney and vicinity, negotiations were at once opened, and what was once deemed an impossibility will soon become an accomplished fact. Various difficulties, apparently insurmountable, were met with and successfully overcome. The ancient sentiment, having its origin in a desire of the founder of the order, long since dead, that the banner of the Society of United Fishermen—"S.U.F." as it is popularly known—should not be flown officially over any other province than Newfoundland, was respected for a longer period than it should have been, but with an entirely new personnel, the Grand Lodge very wisely decided that the fraternal benefits of the order should no longer be withheld from any who desired to obtain them, so long as the applicants were British subjects and desired the foundation of a lodge in a British province. Hence, the Red Flag, containing the symbol of the Triangle and Maltese Cross, will very shortly be spread in Nova Scotia, and to the city of Sydney will be given the first opportunity of displaying it on the S.U.F. flag pole.

For those to whom the name of the society conveys little, yet who may wish to know something of it, it can be said that the ideals of the Society of United Fishermen are as lofty and noble as are those of any fraternal organization which makes loyalty its guiding power. The motto of the Order is made up of the words, Love, Purity, Fidelity, a triangular arrangement of the three great virtues which direct and govern the destinies of the S.U.F. are Red, White and Blue, and are typical of the trinity of human virtues given above. Love is exemplified by Red, Purity by White, and Fidelity by Blue. The motto of the order is loyalty and benevolence. It stands firstly for the King; secondly for the country, and thirdly for the fisheries, and all that these imply.—Sydney Record.

Obituary.

MRS. JOHN GRACE.

There passed away, on the 4th inst., an old and respected lady in the person of Mrs. John Grace, aged 75 years, a native of St. John's. She was sister of the late Thomas Conway, who predeceased her about two years ago. She was always known to be an honorable person. Her remains were interred at Belvidere Cemetery on the 6th inst. May her soul rest in peace.—Amen.

The World's Richest Silver Mine.

Leading an expedition into an unexplored part of New South Wales, an explorer found himself in a mass of barren gorges where desolation reigned supreme.

There was no water. The heat was terrific. Every screw in the boxes of the explorers was drawn by it, the bone handles of their instruments, as well as their combs, were split to pieces. The lead dropped out of their pencils, their hair ceased to grow, their nails became brittle as glass.

Glad to escape with their lives from this place of torment, they turned southward, never dreaming that they were leaving behind them wealth beyond the dreams of avarice.

They had discovered, without knowing it, the Barrier Silver Field, a region richer in this precious metal than any other of similar size on the face of the globe.

Years afterwards a boundary rider named Charles Rasp visited the place, and noticed an outcrop of ore which he took to be tin, but which in reality was nearly pure silver. He pegged out his claim, thereby becoming the original discoverer and first proprietor of the world-famous Broken Hill Mine.

The story of the subsequent rush of miners and prospectors to the new El Dorado is graphically told by Mr. Roy Bridges in "From Silver to Steel."

They were a hard-bitten, hard-drinking, hard-gambling crew, these early pioneers. Many died. Some few became millionaires. One man won at a game of cards a share in the Broken Hill Mine valued at £120. Six years later he sold it for £1,250,000.

Not far off is the Day Dream Mine, so named by its discoverer, Mercho. Stumbling wearily along he was faced by a bluish gleaming with bright blue, green and yellow silver carbonates.

At the base of the low cliff some mysterious hand, presumably a black's, for no white man would have passed by such a discovery, had raised little piles of beautifully-coloured fragments of the precious stuff.

Later on, in addition to silver, lead and zinc in enormous quantities were discovered; and still later a veritable mountain of ironstone.

The Cato St. Plot.

On September 12, 1790, was born Arthur Thistlewood, a man who was destined to have his name included on the scroll of criminal notoriety as the originator of the Cato Street Plot—an organized attempt to assassinate the ministers of the Crown. Thistlewood, while living in France, had been able to learn the doctrines of the French revolutionaries, at first hand. He had been involved in a trial for sedition, but acquitted, and had later suffered a year's imprisonment for sending a threat to Lord Sidmouth. He was probably, therefore, actuated by a desire for revenge, and also in urgent need of money. The military were absent at Windsor for the funeral of King George III. On February 23, 1820, a Cabinet dinner had been arranged for the evening at the residence in Grosvenor Square, of the Earl of Harrowby. Thistlewood planned that all the ministers should be murdered as they sat at the table. One of the conspirators was to call at the house with the ostensible object of delivering a letter. On the door being opened the gang were to rush in, secure the servants, and then murder the ministers at the point of the sword, or by means of hand grenades. In the meantime, other members of the gang were to set fire to the cavalry barracks, and two cannon in Grays Inn Lane were to be captured, together with six others in the Artillery Ground. With these possessions was to be taken of the Mansion House and the Bank of England. Different parts of the metropolis were to be set on fire, and before order could be set up. One or more of the gang, however, turned informers with the result that the dinner was postponed, although the arrangements were allowed to proceed till the last moment, so that when a surprise raid was carried out by the police and military on the stable loft in Cato Street, where the conspirators were assembled between twenty and thirty of them were discovered in the act of arming themselves with swords, pistols, knives, etc. After a desperate fight nine of the men were arrested, but fourteen or fifteen, including Thistlewood, escaped through a back window. Thistlewood was arrested the next morning and four of his companions—Tidd, Ings, Brant, and Davidson (a coloured man)—were hanged on May 1, 1820, at the Old Bailey. They all went callously to the scaffold, Ings shouting: "Good-bye, gentlemen, here go the remains of an unfortunate gentleman." Brant took a pinch of snuff at the last moment.
