Rhino Rolled

Down the Trail.

On one expedition-notable in my memory because I was unaccompanied by any other white men-I spied a huge rhinoceros under a fig tree not more than a hundred yards away, writes Dr. Shelby the big game

As soon as the boys saw that rhino they grabbed up their loads, and started on down the trail.

I decided not to kill the huge beast, and was about to turn in my tracks, when he rushed toward me snorting and lowering his head.

He was upon me before I was in a position to shoot, so there was nothing to do but leap nimbly to one side. He put on the brakes and almost stopped, then continued on down the trail in the wake of the porters. They were heavily loaded and would have difficulty in escaping, so I made up my mind I would have to kill him. As I raised my rifle he was just turning a bend twenty yards down the trail. And, scarcely taking aim, I

It was a snap shot for his body. I fancied that he lurched forward. At any rate, he disappeared around the bend and I could hear him rolling over and over down the trail, while the cries of a dozen or more terror stricken natives rent the air.

I hurried forward. Around the bend I found loads scattered everywhere. Some boys had scrambled upon huge rocks. Two had jumped into a tree, Some had jumped aside. One of these had been bowled over by the rhino, which then rolled over him, but luckily the boy had fallen between two rocks, which received the ponder-

How idle is the piled up wealth of yonder Croesus-man, if he can have no sort of health unless he lives on bran! How tawdry is the wreath of fame on that immortal guy, if every organ in his frame revolts at pumpkin pie! My stomach's able to digest soft coal or building bricks, and when I toil and when I rest it's hitting on all six. The loaves and fishes I consume, with cake I fill my craw, while poor dyspeptics sit in gloom and eat their shredded straw.
