HIGH COMMISSIONER LARKIN LAUDS MANUFACTURERS LIFE

Insurance Company Opens Massive Headquarters Building at Toronto.

NOTABLES SPEAK

Toronto, Aug. 26.-After 38 years of ever-expanding business, the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company reached not the culmination, but a milestone on its history, with the opening this afternoon by the Hon. P. C. Larkin, high commissioner for Canada, in London, of its magnificent new headquarters building on Bloor street, between Jarvis and Church streets. A notable gathering was present for the ceremony, including the premier of Ontario, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Chief Justice Sir William Mulock, and the mayor of Toronto, Mr. Thomas Foster, all of whom paid tribute to the honorable history of the company, and congratulated the officers on the present ccomplishment.

The speakers at the banquet, with The speakers at the banquet, with which the opening was celebrated, were unanimous in praise of the building as an architectural acquisition to the city. It is six storys high, with basement, and is of dressed Indiana limestone, on a pink Milford granite base. No unsightly outside fire escapes to mar its appearance. There is a classic beauty in its straight lines, the only embellishment being a doric colonnade with six fluted columns, and the dignity of this austere simplicity is peculiarly befitting a home of modern business.

Massive Structure.

Massive Structure. The massiveness of the building suggests a stability which a skyscraper fails to convey, and aroused admiring comments from all who saw it for the first time. The president of the company, W. G. Gooderham, introduced the high commissioner at the gathering outside the building, and the key having been handed to Hon, Mr. Larkin by the architect, H. Sproutt, he formally declared the building open, and the company repaired to the dining room on the sixth floor. In addition to those already mentioned, there were at the head table J. K. McDanald, president of Confederation Life, H. C. Cox, president of Canada Life, Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, whose church, St. Paul's, is opposite the new structure, E. R. Wood, Col. Alex. Fraser, representing the lieutenant-governor, L. Goodman, president North American Life, A. W. Austin, president Consumers Gas Co., J. B. McKechnie, general manager of Manufacturers Life, and the following directors: C. C. Dalton, Douglas Ross, Wm. Stone, Col, Wilkes, M. R. Gooderham, F. G. Osler and E. R. C. Clarkson. W. G. throughout, being framed with steel columns and beams encased in brickwork and with outer walls of brick faced with stone. The type of construction used for the floors and roofs is known as "Truscan" construction. It consists of light steel beams, supported by a thin slab of concrete, on which is laid the flooring. I have been informed by the architect that this system was used on this building for the first time in Canada, and has since been adopted in the construction of a number of buildings in Toronto. The building contains no fires of any description, as the power-house is a detached building some 400 feet from the main building. Combined with it is a garage for the use of the officers and staff, a laundry and other quarters. As to the arrangement of the various floors, I may say that these have been laid out in a very simple manner. Four of the six floors contain ous floors, I may say that these have been laid out in a very simple manner. "We follow the practice which has been adopted by a number of financial institutions in providing noonday luncheon for the members of the staff. The growth of the company will undoubtedly entail additions to the building from time to time. In fact the plans of building were completed with the knowledge that the building might have to be added to possibly within the first that the billiding might have to be added to possibly within the first year's time. Provision has therefore been made for the extension to the north of wings, one on the east side, and another on the west side of the building."
