Drop in and see the display of Christmas presents at the Bon Marche.

The recovery of Mary Harrington, one of the victims of gas at the American hotel, is still doubtful. She was unconscious last night.

James Bates, a well-known and popular young Torontoian, died yesterday at his residence, 93 Maria street, from typhoid fever. His funeral to-morrow afternoon will be attended by the oddfellows and masons.

For dress goods go to the Bon Marche.

The Y. P. A. of St. James' square presbyterian church held a pleasant yuletide gathering last evening, which was largely attended. An excellent program of music, etc., was given. This association is in a flourishing condition.

Why pay full prices for your toys and fancy goods, when you can buy them for half regular prices at the Bon Marche?

The entrance examination to the high school began at the Collegiate institute yesterday morning. There were 134 candidates in attendance. The presiding examiners are J. L. Hughes and Archibald Macmurray, rector of the institute. The examination concludes to-day.

Remember the Bon Marche keeps open until 10 o'clock.

Business Pointers.

Go to Chapman & Symon, the Yonge street butchers, to see a great display of Xmas beef, etc., and poultry, any quantity and at prices unequalled in the city.

Ball & Co., 219 Yonge street, have an immense stock of fashionable ladies' furnishings. All the goods are marked at reduced figures just for the holidays, and those requiring such goods would do well to take advantage of the offer.

Have you bought an Xmas present yet? No, but you'll want to buy one to-day at Davis Bros., Yonge street. They have all kinds of watches, clocks, jewelry, etc., just suitable for a present, and marked at such low prices. I always go there, and if you want value for your money you try it, too. C. J. Stuart, grocer, etc., corner of King and John streets, has on hand a large and choice assortment of Xmas fruits, oranges, etc., etc., and at lowest prices. Orders by telephone No. 173 promptly attended to.

R. S. Williams & Son, established piano-forte manufacturers, are offering special inducements to the public. They manufacture their own goods under their own personal supervision, and capital expense and excellent facilities for the construction of pianos enable them to turn out a really first-class instrument, and at a price and on terms to suit any and everybody.

Husbands be obedient to your wives and go to the Bon Marche for Christmas presents.

"Toothpick" shoes out of fashion.

"Toothpick" shoes, said a shoe-maker recently, "have disappeared forever; at least I hope it is forever." But the chances are that the fashion will come up again in the next twenty years, according to the regular rotation of such things. The pointed toes of the sixteenth century were pretty because they were asymmetrically designed, but the obsolete specimens of the sixteenth century, which are being carried about town now, and which are being pointed-toe boot forever. It is possible to imagine any uglier footwear than a boot made very narrow at the toe, flat headed, and with the toes all bunched up on one side, and rising in a series of little bumps forward of the feet. The square-toed shoe of the politician is really the most sensible one in the market.

The place to buy your flannels and blankets is the Bon Marche.

Officers of F. R. A. No. 2.

At the annual election of branch No. 2, Emerald benevolent association, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Thomas Doyle, president; William McGee, vice-president; John McCully, secretary; Martin Healy, recording secretary; John McBride, treasurer; William McLean, marshal; Alexander McLellan, assistant marshal; John Kennedy, messenger; Patrick Cooke and James Grogan, stewards; Thomas Stuart, clerk; James McNeil, assistant librarian.

Sentive cents will buy a dog skin mat at the Bon Marche.

A Modern Shakespeare.

"Now is winter of our Canadian shore. Much glorious summer by Doreen—the latter." Rich III. (revised edition).

But few Torontonians know that Doreen—the latter—and the furriger—of Toronto is a poet. But he is, and none of mean order either. Poetry and facts are his habits. As we will discuss the poetry and like to see Harte's "Furthest James" merely "to remark" that Doreen's stock of fur goods are the best in town. His prices are the lowest and he gives the best value for the money. No lady should fail to inspect his beautiful stock.—Advt.

Remember the Bon Marche keeps open until 10 o'clock.

Some advice to Advertisers.

The World is the only paper in Toronto that does not appear periodically as a "blanket sheet." Thousands of dollars are thrown away by advertisers by inserting their notices in the unobtainable recesses of these eight, twelve, sixteen and twenty page sheets. Every line that appears in the World is seen by everyone that reads the paper. The World is complete, easily handled, well read and you get the value for your money every time. Advertisers, remember this.

See the display of Christmas presents at the Bon Marche.

Go to 63 King street west for Fine Albums and Dolls at slaughter prices.

An Accommodation Tract.

"Are we nearly there, conductor?" asked a nervous man for the tenth time. "Remember, my wife is sick, and I am anxious."

"We'll get there on time," replied the conductor.

Half an hour later the nervous man said mournfully, "I guess she's dead now, but I'd give you something extra if you could manage to catch up with the funeral."

The conductor growled at him, and he subsided.

"Conductor," said he, after an hour's silence, "if the wind isn't dead about here, I wish you would put on some steam. I'd like to see where my wife is buried before the tombstone crumbles to pieces."

The conductor shook his head, and the man relaxed into a position of melancholy.

"I say, conductor," said he, after a long pause, "I've got a note coming due in three months. Can't you fix it so as to settle along a little?"

"If you come near me again, I'll knock you down," said the conductor, savagely.

The nervous man regarded him gawdly, and went to his seat. Two hours later the conductor seeing him chatting gaily and laughing heartily, approached and said: "Don't feel too bad about your wife's death after all!"

"Time heals all wounds," said the nervous man.

"And are you not so particular about the note?"

"Not now. It's all right. Don't worry. I've been fighting up, and I find that the note has been outlawed since I spoke to you last."

Berlin wools, finest quality at the Bon Marche.

Christmas Presents at Half Price.

People who do not want to pay more than half price for their Christmas goods and presents are flocking to the Bon Marche. Yesterday it was almost impossible to push through the crowd that packed to the apertures and hives of the stores. If you want to be served quickly go early to-day, as the run will be great. You can get anything in line of fashion at the Bon Marche, and the strong point about it is that it is so cheap that the forekeeper makes no profit on his sales. It is acknowledged by everyone who visits the Bon Marche will be open till 10 o'clock to-night.

Go to 63 King street west for Holiday Presents in Japanese Goods at less than wholesale cost.

A School Girl's Superstition.

From the Philadelphia Record.

At the entrance examination this morning a little girl shortly after her arrival took a large horseshoe out of her valise and placed it on the desk before her. At 12 she put it back in her valise and at 1:15 she once more took it out. The shoe was introduced for good luck, and the little girl places every confidence in it, and thinks it will assist her in passing successfully.

Go to 63 King street west for James Campbell & Sons Bankrupt Sale of Holiday Books.

Estimating the Price of Quinine.

From the Philadelphia Record.

Quinine has jumped in price within the last two weeks from 75 and 80 cents an ounce to $1 and $1.05. The drug has never been so low for less than $1 an ounce until this year, and at 75 and 80 cents it is sold at less than cost. It is probable that in a short time quinine will be selling at $1.00, which is slightly below the figure of a year ago.

"Husband," dear, go to the Bon Marche and buy me one of those great Christmas presents, and that will be all I ask you for a Christmas box.
