The books of the Union Bank will show that in nearly every large grant made by the province. every large grant made by the province the proceeds were tolled by Mercier's agents like Pacaud and the plunder so obtained used by Mercier and his colleagues for their personal Managers, of which Manager Hill of the Torand political needs. The annual upheaval among the citizens that precedes the municipal elections is now at its height in this city, but appearances indicate that it will fizz and splutter and condinate for the form of the for end in a fizzle.

It is a fall custom of Toronto people to clamor for an able Mayor and a complete outfit of able aldermen. And it is a winter custom of Toronto people to haggle and disagree as to which good man they shall elect. While they are squabbling the ward machine noiselessly revolves and easily foists its nominee into the high chair at the City Hall.

In past years we have seen demonstrations nominee into the high chair at the City Hall.

In past years we have seen demonstrations quite as imposing as that made by the Citizens' Associations at the present moment. Those bent on agreat reformation last year pinned their whole faith to Mr. W. R. Brock, who dallied with them until it became too late to bring out an opponent to Mayor Clarke. In dallied with them until it became too late to bring out an opponent to Mayor Clarke. In this emergency E. A. Macdonald persuaded himself to run a losing race. He felt that a good man was needed and he could not, in the short time at his disposal, think of a better man than himself. Although defeated, he made such a run that it was evident if a man of less genius and more judgment had been in his boots he would have defeated the present mayor.

Those organized for reform last year accomplished nothing, because they centered all their hopes on one man and he disappointed has lifted up E. B. Osler in the wilderness and had no sooner commanded all believers in good government to turn their eyes upon him than Osler jumps off the pole and journeys to England. In olden times diolatrous nations invariably faltered in their allegiance to absent delties and contrived new ones from material at hand. It is strong evidence of the virtuous inexperience of those citizens who are now trying 'prentice hands in municipal matters that they innocentry fancy they can elect Mr. Osler and he absent in England during the next month. The machine men, the practical fellows who "say nothing but saw wood," know that Mr. Osler's absence is enough to defeat him if he were half as strong again as he is. But Mr. Osler's absence is enough to defeat him if he were half as atrong again as he is. But Mr. Osler's absence is not the only difficulty of the situation. He is the nomine of the Citizens' Association, which may be called an available asset of last year's popular indignation, was not consulted nor asked to co-operate until after Mr. Osler's name had been carried into the field. This body is in a huff and has declared against Mr. Osler. This is not ostensibly done because of the slight put upon it, but it is said that Mr. Osler's usualization, but the said that Mr. Osler's usualization of the protesting body admitted that it acted through pique its efforts would have little influence, but urging such a subtle plea of disqualification against Mr. Osler's in unsatisfactory because he is a railroad director. The same paper says that if things are unsatisfactory in Canada they can only be considered so in comparison with the United 26 & 28 Colborne St., Toronto, Can. States, or because of the close neighborhood

To have gained a population nearly 5,000,000, to have built upa merchant marine that is exceeded in tonnage by but two—or possibly three—of the great nations of the world, to have developed agriculture in spite of a somewhat inhospitable climate, and to have made a good start toward manufacturing prosperity, are achievements of which any people in a colonial stage may be proud. That Canada's debt is unduly large is due in part to official corruption, but far more to rash expenditures made in a patriotic, but elusive, hope of rivaling its richer neighbor. It declares that there is a perfect chaos of demand for political union—evidently at 0.W. KENNEDY, L.D.S., Dentist taching too much importance to noise created by Sol White and a few others. But The Inter-Ocean and the American people can ascertain the feeling in Canada by consulting the attitude of the Government that represents our people. Its temper is shown in its promulgation of a new emigration policy. It is in power and its very Canadianism will keep it there. The party will not prevent political union and reject every trade arrangement that would entail such an union, but the country firmly opposed to such an union will employ that steadfast and uncompromising party to prewhole of the finances of Quebec. The province was constantly in a state of chronic hard-upness, and the Pacauds in order to get money out of contractors, claimants and other sub-ventioned parties had to resort to all sorts of methods of discounting, and as a consequence all their boodle transactions are more or less on record on the books of the banks. There will therefore be no trouble in establishing the boodling, the parties interested and where the money went. When these revelations come they will surprise the people of Canads.

Canada is All Right.

It is a striking way of summing up the characters of the two Canadian political parties to say, as The Chicago Inter-Ocean does, that simultaneously with Prof. Goldwin Smith's lecture in favor of political union before the Young Liberals, the Tory Government announced a new policy for diverting emigration from the States into the Canadian Northwest. In short, while the Young Liberals were absorbing the doctrine that Canada is no good and must throw up the sponge sconer or later, the Tories were perfecting a plan for enlarging the country's resorces and increasing its population.
