Claim That 48 Cents Per Hour As Minimum Wage Is Not Too High.

The proposed reduction of wages will be fought to the limit, say the street railway employees to-day. A meeting of the executive committee will be ed some time within the next week so to consider what definite steps uld be taken in the matter. President Colbert, of the union, stated to-day that it would be impossible to call an executive conference before next week some time, but the question would be taken up as soon as possible.

President Colbert asserted that the cut will not be accepted. While he can only speak for himself in this, he out give an official opinion until the executive meets, he is practi-certain that all of the other memof the committee will take the

Included in general suggestions for educational campaigns among the people is one for the promotion of the idea of buying London-made goods and the development of civic pride. One gentleman points out that there is nothing the matter with London, if the people would only get that idea into their heads, that the rate of taxes here is services provided, and that generally London as it is is a pretty good sort of place in which to live, the prime necessity being to get the citizens thinking along this line. This would promote optimism and faith in new enterprises and assist materially in presenting the advantages of the city as a location for new industries.
