Do any CBC radio stations broadcast in languages or dialects other than English or French and, if so, which radio stations do so, in what languages or dialects and for what periods of time each week?

Hon. James Hugh Faulkner (Secretary of State): I am informed by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as follows: Based on March, 1972 figures, CBC Northern Service AM radio stations broadcast a total of about 42 hours of programming per week in the north by and/or for native Indian and Eskimo people in their own languages. The broadcasts originate from the following program centres (and are also broadcast on their connected low power relay transmitters): CFYK, Yellowknife, 3 hours (Indian); CFFB, Frobisher Bay, 25 hours (Eskimo); CHAK, Inuvik 2½ hours (Eskimo); 3 hours (Indian); CHFC, Fort Churchill 4 hours (Eskimo), 4½ hours (Indian). The native languages used are Eastern Eskimo, Western Eskimo, Cree, Chipewyan, Loucheux (Kutchin), Dog Rib, and Slave. In addition, Northern Service shortwave radio broadcasts in native languages total 11 hours (Eskimo) and one hour 40 minutes (Cree), including repeats. Excluded from the above figures is additional programming in English or French designed for native peoples. In addition to the Northern Service, CBC stations elsewhere broadcast brief inserts in Indian languages in certain weekly programs of interest to Indian people as follows: Ontario, approximately five minutes per week in "Compass North"; Saskatchewan, approximately four minutes per week in "North Country Fair"; Alberta, approximately four minutes per week in "The Native Voice of Alberta" produced by the Alberta Native Communications Society. For a 12-month transitional period following CBC acquisition of radio station CKSB, St. Boniface, the Corporation has offered to make time available to interested language groups which have been accustomed to CKSB broadcasts in their languages. The CBC also broadcasts to other countries via the Radio Canada International shortwave service in Czech, German, Hungarian, Polish, Portuguese,
