

WILLIAMS—conviction of, for publishing the "Age of Reason," C. J., iv. 62; L. C., viii. 136.

WILLIAMS—Mr., prosecuted as proprietor of the "Durham Chronicle," L. C., x. 316.

WILLIAMS—Bishop, Lord Keeper, C. J., ii. 21, 26; introduction at Court, L. C., iii. 79; attempt by, to convict Archbishop Abbot of manslaughter, C. J., i. 322-3; L. C., iii. 152-3; attempt by, to ruin Lord Bacon, L. C., iii. 99; parentage, 128; education, 129; chaplain to Lord Ellesmere, 130; noticed by the King and Prince of Wales, 132; negotiates the marriage of Buckingham, 134-5; made Dean of Westminster, 135; advice on the prosecution of Bacon, 78-9, 136; Lord Keeper, 139; appointment censured, 139; Privy Councillor and Bishop of Lincoln, 141; attributes his appointment to the miraculous interposition of Providence, Ib.; inaugural address, 144; practical joke on, foiled, 148; industry, Ib.; success as a judge, 149; supposed tendency to Popery, 154; plot against Buckingham discovered by, 158; spies employed by, iii. 160; treated as a layman whilst Lord Keeper, 161; attends the death-bed of the King, 162; insults to, from Buckingham, 164; charges against, 165; delivers up the Great Seal, 166; anecdote respecting, 167; conduct in office, Ib.; lives in retirement, 169; gives offense to the Court, 170; supports the Petition of Right, 171; prosecution of, by Laud, C. J., ii. 59; punishment imposed on, Ib.; committed to the Tower, L. C., iii. 174; excessive severity towards, Ib.; liberated, 175; advice to the King, 176; indefensible conduct towards Strafford, 177; Archbishop of York, 178; defends Westminster Abbey against a mob, 179; committed to the Tower, Ib.; release, 180; flight from Cawood Castle, 181; vigorous measures taken by, in North Wales, 181-2; advice respecting Cromwell, 182; joins the Parliamentary forces, 184; retires from public life, 185; death, 186; encourages theatrical representations, 187; character, 187-8; personal appearance, disposition, liberality, 188-9; epitaph, 190.

WILLIAMS—Peere, Chancery Reports, meagre nature of, L. C., v. 2.